The United Nations met in mock session at Arroyo Mocho School in Livermore Friday.

Four issues were debated there by fifth and sixth graders who had studied their "countries" and the topics for over three weeks, according to teacher Tulita Kuchins who organized the project.

Geographic, economic, sociological and political conditions were studied and the students made flags of their countries. A few even appeared in costume in the "General Assembly."

The delegates debated then voted on whether the U.N. should oversee human rights problems, worldwide environmental stand

Talks resume Monday on GE closure

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Talks continued into the weekend here on the General Electric Vallecitos nuclear reactor shutdown.

Staff members of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission began meeting Friday to hear report on the seismic situation which caused the NRC to shut down one of two Vallecitos reactors last week.

On Saturday the subject shifted to the nature of that reactor, as officials from GE briefed the staffers. The talks are scheduled to resume Monday, when the subject will turn to the effect the shutdown is likely to have on the nationwide availability of radioisotopes, the artificaially created radio active substances used in nuclear work.

When the discussions are completed, the NRC staffers will report their findings to the NRC members themselves, with whom final authority rests. Normally a five-person body, the NRC is now functioning with four members. Two of them are generally considered favorable to the nuclear industry, and two are not.

The Senate within the past two weeks rejected the Carter administration nominee for the fifth spot on the grounds that he had no experience in regulatory agencies. He was a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a former colleague of Energy Secretary James Schlesinger. The license of the reactor which was shut down had expired a year ago. But the reactor had been kept running on an interim basis until a geological survey showed that the Verona Fault runs within 200 feet of it, not a half-mile to the north as formerly believed.

Why the delay?

The government would have investigated Vallecitos at an earlier date, if it had geological information in the hands of GE officials. First hints of a potential earthquake fault were detected in 1958. Possible danger from the fault was minimized, however, and 8b no further study was conducted until just this month.

Rape suspect returning from New Mexico

John Raymond Shook, the man accused of kidnapping and raping an 18-year-old Livermore woman at gunpoint Wednesday, surrendered to police in Gallup, New Mexico Friday morning and will be returned to Livermore in the next 24 hours.

Shook walked into police custody and was promptly arrested on the basis of a $35,000 arrest warrant accusing him of kidnap, rape, assault with a deadly weapon and two counts of firearms use.

The arrest climaxed more than two days of a police search for the 24-year-old suspect, who was described by police here as "confused and upset."

The attack occurred Wednesday morning when a red-haired man armed with a revolver forced the woman to drive to a lonely spot on Fallon Road. The woman was raped and later driven to her residence. The suspect then fled in his vehicle, described as a small pick-up truck.

The victim's distinctive description of the suspect, which named a red-haired, goateed man with a pony tail and burn marks on his back and shoulders, was seen in local newspapers by Shook's brother-in-law who lives in Livermore.

Police were notified and attempted to track the suspect as he fled south on a bus. Shook eluded police until he called his Livermore relatives from Gallup and discovered he was named in the arrest warrant.

The suspect telephoned Livermore police Friday morning, telling them through tears that he was confused and didn't remember any details of the crimes he was accused of, according to Sgt. Phillip Johnson.

Shook talked briefly and hung up, then called back later and finally agreed to turn himself in. Johnson called ahead to police in Gallup and advised them of the situation.

The suspect waived extradition and will be brought to Livermore today or tomrorrow, Johnson said.

Raymond takes on the governor

The Valley's county supervisor, Valerie Raymond, took on the state's governor, Jerry Brown, in a little impromptu and friendly debate in Sacramento last week.

Brown spoke to the County Supervisors Association of California's convention.Raymond, in the question and answer period following, took exception to some of the governor's remarks.

She made such a good pitch for the county governments in some of their long - standing quarrels with the state, especially on property tax reform, that many county supervisors came to her after the little discussion and congratulated her for telling it like it is.

"What bothered me about Brown's speech was that he wants to the state to run welfare and health programs that the counties should continue to run.

"He assumes that because we don't want to fund these programs with property tax revenues, we don't want to run them at all. That's not true. We just don't want to use the property tax."

She also disliked Brown's suggestion to put a ceiling on local government spending.

"I told him that it's a copout for local governments to have a ceiling. With no ceiling, there won't be the excuse to go up to a ceiling figure. Elected officials can keep taxes lower or be turned out by the voters. If a ceiling is such a good idea, why doesn't Brown suggest it for state government, too."

Pleasanton downtown organized

PLEASANTON — Merchants downtown have gone formal.

At their meeting Friday 32 business people officially voted in the Pleasaton Downtown Association, com;lete with bylaws, officers and a board of directors.

This is the first time merchants have had a formal, independent organization in 18 years. Previously they were represented by a Chamber of Congress committee.

The eight directors approved Friday will serve one year terms. But President Joyce Getty says once the assibcuation is firmly on its feet, a new board will be elected with staggered terms so there will not be a complete turnover each year.

Merchants hope to form a strong assocaiation to imprsve business on the Main Street area. The new board experts to charge $15 in joining dues.

Merchants eledted to the board are George Patton of Caratti Jewelers; Max's Shoes; Gary Stillwell of Dupree's Furniture; Milta Tilford of Gas Lamp Realty; Gene Finch of Gene's Flooring; Vic Lund of Hacienda Company; Elaine Koopmann of Koopmann Linoleum; and Chris Kudriavtseff of the Woodwork.

BART transfer to Chicago?

BART travelers now can make a simple transfer in Richmond and wind up in Chicago — on purpose.

Governor Edmund Brown, Jr., dedicated a special BART/AMTRAK cross platform in Richmond Friday.

It enables travelers to depart BART, walk across the station, and get on a Southern Pacific train for various destinations.

A special five - car S.P. train came down from Sacramento Friday with various dignitaries for the occasion.

Jaycees offer seniors aid

Pleasanton senior citizens who need minor home repairs done before the onslaught of winter should contact the Senior Center — and do so quickly.

The Jaycees Club members are volunteering time, manpower and money to help seniors ready their homes for winter, but will carry the program through only if enough people request their help to make the program substantially worthwhile.

The Jaycees will help repair leaks, weatherproof window sills and do other small jobs to make the house warm and comfortable during the cold months. The club is also looking for seniors who are interested in helping work in the program.

Civil Air Patrol

A chance chat with a prince

PLEASANTON — Two Pleasanton residents chatted and shook hands with Prince Charles during an accidental meeting at Dobbins Air Force Base outside Atlanta, Georgia.

Julie Maier and Fred Staedel said they were very impressed by the incident. Both are Civil Air Patrol (CAP) officers. She is a First Lieutenant. Staedel is a Captain. They are in CAP Squadron 156, based in Livermore.

The two were among 125 CAP representatives from California waiting at the airport to depart for home. They had been attending the CAP national board meeting held in Atlanta Oct. 23.

"Our departure had been delayed and while we were waiting, a black limousine pulled up with the Prince, Georgia's governor and Atlanta's mayor," Staedel said. "The Prince leaned over them and looked out the window spotting all of us standing there in our CAP uniforms."

Staedel said the Prince climbed out one car door and came over to the CAP group. Staedel said the Prince talked to them for 15 minutes wanting to known about CAP.

"He asked several of us how we earned our wings and recognized World War II ribbons on a 70 year-old CAP Lieutenant Colonel. Then the Prince wanted to know what the Lt. Col. had done during the war."

Finally, the Prince said to Staedel, "I hope my presence here has not disrupted your meeting."

Staedel replied, "On the contrary, your presence here was the climax of our meeting."

Staedel said the Prince looke d to those to whom he was talking right in the eye, had a firm handshake and smiled a lot.

"His respect for the individual was overpowering. He really concentrated on what each person had to say. He would ask another question based on the answer you had just given him."

Maier told Staedel the Prince was as handsome as she had pictured.

Traffic stirs guards' calm

LIVERMORE — The school crossing guard, in luminous yellow windbreaker, waving her sign and shrilly blowing a whistle, marched out to the middle of the street as the children waited on the curb.

While most cars slowed to a halt at her incessant whistle, one car nosed forward and rolled through the crossing without a glance to either side.

"it happens all the time. I just get so mad," muttered Marge Lennier, crossing guard at busy Murrieta and Olivina. Marge has a little assist from the four-way stop sign at the Old friend back at fair

Barring unforseen circumstances, including the possibility of another group operating the annual County Fair, the four decades-old fair parade is alive again and tentatively set for the last Sunday in June, 1978.

The Pleasanton Lions Club will organize and sponsor the annual prelude to the two-week fair and the County Fair Association board will soon consider a recommendation to give up to $3,000 for prize monies.

However, a statement in an earlier edition referring to the insurance and mailing costs was incorrect. Those costs are totally separate from what the Fair Association might give the organizers.

The recommendation of the board's entertainment and publicity committees will be received at their Nov. 8 meeting.

The parade had become one of the traditions of Valley life, since its inception in the late 1930s. But lack of a community group to take up sponsorship this past June led to the event being called off. The County Fair Association had also expressed the desire to step away from any active organizing of the parade aside from a contribution for prizes of the judged sections.

Prior to the Wednesday night meeting of fair board committees and Lions Club representatives Ben Fernandez and Sid Williams, the Pleasanton City Council had given unanimous support to a motion that would provide necessary polrt.

The parade would start on Santa Rita Road and proceed down Main. It would disband on Rose Avenue near the Soil Conservation property.

Meeting chairman Joe Perez suggested that Fernandez and the Lions Club committee proceed with obtaining entries.

If approved by the entire fair board, the parade would be held on the last Sunday of June, starting at approximately 12 noon.

Old map spurs new probe in GE nuclear activities

PLEASANTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) would have ordered an investigation into the fault line at General Electric's Vallecitos Nuclear Center earlier had it seen one geologist's map that G.E. has had since 1958. according to Karl Goller, NRC's Assistant Director for Operating Reactors.

At issue is a map completed by geologist C.R. Hall and published at the University of California in the 1950's.

Goller says it was that map, showing a possible fault passing within 200 feet of the center's large nuclear reactor, that caused NRC officials to start worrying. NRC saw that map for the first time in June, 1977, when it was included in a report submitted by G.E.

But G.E. submitted the report and map four years after the report was completed and nineteen years after G.E. first had access to the map.

According to a G.E. statement made to The Times Friday, the firm submitted a report to the Atomic Energy Commission making specific reference to the "postulated fault lineation" in the mid-50's.

In that report G.E. told the commission that based on geologists' studies, the fault was "not to be feared as the possible site of a large earthquake. No surface movements are to be expected and accelerations associated with earthquakes along this fault will be of little significance."

Goller admits that NRC knew of references made by G.E. to the fault years ago, but says it was the Hall map seen by NRC this past summer that prompted NRC to ask G.E. to investigate the fault further. — and insists NRC would have demanded an investigation years ago had it bu seen the map.

All of G.E. studies, including the most recent 1973 Blume and Associates report, concluded the "fault lineation" was of minor seismic significance. But none tested the age of the rocks or trenched the "lineation" to determine if it was or was not an active fault.

It was through those testing processes that U.S. Geological Survey's Dr. Darrell Herd determined the "lineation" was, in fact, the Verona Fault last month.

G.E. geologists don't agree with Dr. Herd's results and are contending the "lineation" could be the result of a long-ago landslide.

G.E. spokesman Ken Clemens says the company saw no reason to submitt the Hall map or Blume report to NRC earlier than this past summer because other "evidence of a lineation had been previously submitted in the 50's."

Crossing guards tell woes

corner. But it doesn't help much.

"At first I'd go out with just a sign, but they didn't seem to see me," says Marge, who now works with a sign and a whistle. "I could be standing out there and they'd stop for the stop sign and just go on as if I wasn't there."

Most of the crossing guards have children in school now, and the job's hours gives them a chance to be home after school. Some have younger children who keep their mothers company on the job.

Joan Sherrow, an alternate, takes her son Howard, 2, to her crossing for the day. She's fixed the back of the station wagon with carpeting and has favorite toys to keep him entertained.

For the last week she has worked El Caminito and Wagner. "The kids just love him, and he loves the kids," she says. This corner is a very nice one, Joan says, because she can park beside her crossing and be in her car when not working.

Other crossings are not so convenient. Marge has to park her truck across Olivina if the weather is bad enough to warrant her sitting in it. "But mostly you'll just find me sitting here in the rain, she says with a laugh.

Fog can create problems for crossing guards, adds Joan. "When it's foggy I usually bring a flashlight," she says. "One morning last week when it was so foggy, I couldn't see a block either way, so I just started waving traffic down with my flashlight."

Bev Orthmann has the corner the other guards dread, Holmes and Vancouver. "Everyone says this is the worst corner, but as far as the kids go, it's the best," she says, after only a week at the spot.

She hind it pretty easy. It's just like the police officer said, you just have to have the guts to step out in the street," Bev explains philosophically.

She has few complaints about the corner, which has long been a dangerous crossing on Highway 84. "The cars go a little faster than they are supposed to go," she says. But she's taken all the good advice of Mary Truss, the former crossing guard there, about when to stop traffic: "Let the trucks go through, and if a car has pass there, about when to stoped the yellow flashing sign don't step out until it has gone by." And she's enjoying the children she sees daily.

"Mary's got the children well trained," Bev says. "She's left a good set of kids. They stay on the curb and wait until I tell them to cross."

Besides weather and speeders, crossing guards sometimes have to contend with fights among the young pedestrians. "You have to be stern, but you have to be friendly," advises Joan.

"Actually they're really good," adds Mrs. Alda Barofaldi, who works at Olivina and Albatross. "For awhile I had trouble with bikes, but now most of them walk their bikes across the street like they're supposed to do."

Mrs. Barofaldi, who has been a guard for two years, explains, "I try not to tie up traffic unless I have to. It's better to let the kids wait."

Most of the guards read, crochet or do needlework during the lags in student crossings. "In the afternoons there's not much time for anything," observes Mrs. Barofaldi.

Crossing guards are supposed to help elementary and junior high students across the streets. Their hours range from about four to almost six hours daily of broken time.

"When I took this job I thought it would be part time," says Marge cheerfully, "but it takes up the day. I really enjoy it." — by Connie Rux

BART director loses bid on hiring policies

OAKLAND — The U.S. Supreme Court's Bakke case, touted as a possible blow against "reverse discrimination" in hiring, figured in a 6-1 decision when BART directors approved a new affirmative action hiring plan last week.

Robert Allen said that the directors should add a clause in the program which makes it clear the policy will not discriminate against people because of race, creed, color, or sex.

Despite the fact that many board resolutions it have had that clause in it, the board wouldn't go for it this time, Allen told The Times.

"I am a supporter of Bakke. I wanted the clause in there so that there won't be any reverse discrimination in our policy," said Allen.

Other board members didn't want the clause because they felt it would be redundant. The board adopted an earlier version of the affirmative action policy and had the clause in it then. It's not needed now, they said.

Allen thinks that since the other board members are liberals and are anti - Bakke, they may simply want e "reverse discrimination" in BART hiring. But he is willing to "take them at their word" and keep an eye out to see that there is no reverse discrimination.

Allen believes the district has not kept pace in hiring Hispanic minorities and feels that a fairly administered affirmative action plan is desirable.

New county planner seen in near future

OAKLAND — "I'd be surprised if (George) Spiliotopoulos expected me to reappoint him to the planning commission," Supervisor Valerie Raymond told The Times last week.

Spiliotopoulos was appointed to one term by Raymond's predecessor, John Murphy. The term expires at the end of this year.

Raymond's philosophy about growth and planning is different from Murphy's. Since Spiliotopoulos's views are more in line with Murphy's thinking, Raymond says she has some ideas about who she might appoint to replace him.

However, she is open to suggestions for the posiries from possible candidates for the seat.

The planning commission meets weekly on Monday afternoons in Hayward and receives pay for the meetings.

Raymond thinks that in view of the great amount of time involved for the important commission and the weekday afternoon meetings, a woman may be in a better position to serve than a man, though she won't rule out a man for the job.

Her record so far on appointments to county commissions has been 21 women and 19 men.

New BART brochure available

A completely revised edition of BART's comprehensive public transit map and information brochure, "BART & Buses," is available now in all BART stations.

The full - color publication is free as an aid to Bay Area transit patrons.

The guide consists of two separate folding maps, one depicting the BART route and the other transit lines serving the East Bay. The second presents the same information for the Peninsula.

Both sections contain full information about how to use BART, with travel times and fare schedule, toll - free telephone information numbers and transfer procedures between BART and other transit lines.

The East Bay map section shows AC Transit bus routes, stops and points of connections with BART in Alameda and Contra Costa counties. It includes all routes of BART/AC Transit express bus service to outlying a county areas, and local AC Transit service schedules for the two East Bay counties.

Valley volunteer unit plans Pleasanton move

PLEASANTON — Pending action of the city planning commission, the Valley Volunteer Bureau is considering a move of their present offices on Rose Avenue to new quarters at the police training facility, 519 Kottinger Dr.

At a meeting scheduled for Nov. 9 at 8 p.m., the planning commission will consider the Valley Volunteer Bureau's application for a conditional use permit to allow operation of the bureau at the Kottinger Drive location.

VVB presently occupies quarters at 287 Rose Ave., sharing the two-story former home with the "Y" and the Pleasanton Soccer Association. All must move by Dec. 1 as the lease on the structure is held by the city, which eventually intends on extending a street through that property.

The Planning Commission may approve, modify or deny the application, or recommend to the City Council any action deemed in the public interest.

Valley Volunteer Bureau has been seeking new quarters for the past two months.

How property tax works — put simply SAN RAMON — San Ramon Valley taxpayers revealed confusion about tax terminology.

During a Times survey, some San Ramon residents said they were not clear about the inner workings of assessed valuation and property tax.

According to Contra Costa County Assessor E.F. Wanaka, assessed value by law is 25 per cent of the assessors opinion of the market value.

"The State constitution states all property shall be assessed at 25 per cent of its full cash market value," he continued. "Market value is the price property would sell for in a reasonable length of time under normal conditions. People actually set the market value, and resulting assessed value, by buying and selling. Assessors just go out and find out what prices people are buying and selling for."

He said the assessor also compares sold property to unsold property in a given area and takes that into consideration. Appraisers are sent to look at property.

- County, 25 per cent
- Schools, 55 per cent
- Cities, dists., 20 per cent

Wanaka explained 25 per cent of the property tax rate is set by the county board of supervisors, 55 per cent by the school disrict and the rest by special districts and/or cities.

"This rate is based on the amount of money needed for operational purposes which is then divided into total assessed value per $100. The resulting figure gives you the property tax rate."

Property taxes pay for schools, fire protection, sheriff department protection, water, sewer and similar services, Wanaka pointed out.

"If people could do with fewer services, property taxes could be lowered."

He added if the property tax rate has been set at $11, a property owner pays $11 for each $100 of assessed valuation.

Wanaka said the county acts as a collection agency where property taxes are concerned.

"Locally, there are roughly 160 districts that set their own property tax rates and do their own levying. The county just collects the monies for those districts then the auditor gives the proper amount of money back to the respective districts."

This year's taxes can be paid in two installments, Wanaka said.

said. "The first installment is due Dec. 10; the second, April 10."

Wanaka said he could make no prediction about next year's tax rate.

Six subdivisions on drawing board in SRV

DANVILLE — The San Ramon Valley Area Planning Commission deliberated over six applications for minor subdivisions plus a proposed development plan for a 32,300 square foot retail shopping center in San Ramon.

Commissioners discussed these issues Wednesday night in the San Ramon Valley High School cafeteria in Danville.

According to Commissioner Linda Best, the proposed subdivisions are slated for Alamo and Danville. She said two other similar applications will be dealt with later.

The proposed retail shopping center for San Ramon wouldbe located at the southeast corner of Purdue Road at San Ramon Valley Boulevard. That is in the vicinity of Crow Canyon Road, Best added.

Monroe Wingate is the proposed shopping center's applicant. The center would be comprised of three buildings. A 5000 square foot building would house a restaurant. Other buildings would include retail shops.

Best said the area planning commission would make it a condition of approval for minor subdivisions to comply with district policies. This condition applied only to major subdivisions before.

The commission requested staff to come up with a report regarding subdivisions on land zoned A-2 (agricultural) in the Tassajara area.

"We need to know more about the impact subdivisions have on such A-2 property," Best reported.

At the present time, subdivisions on A-2 land have to maintain a five acre minimum per house. A-2 parcels of less than five acres cannot be subdivied, Best pointed out.

Keep SR rail line — county

MARTINEZ — The Contra Costa county board of supervisors approved an ordinance authorizing an abandoned vehicle abatement program, noted its opposition to the abandonment by Southern Pacific of its San Ramon line and discussed a cancer study.

Discussing the implications of the abandonment of its San Ramon line by the railroad, Supervisor Eric Hasseltine noted Tuesday it would be a disadvantage to the area, especially for those areas zoned industrial, if the tracks were pulled out.

The board voted to adopt an ordinance which requests the California Highway Patrol to administer its County Abandoned Vehicle Abatement Program, which conducts hearings and prosecutes owners of abandoned or dismantled vehicles found to be a public nuisance.

Other items discussed Tuesday included discussion of a $126,884 county study on Industrial Emissions in specified parts of the county, to define and coMe up with the "real facts" regarding the county's high incidence of cancer.

"People die in the county and they become a Contra Costa statistic," said Supervisor Warren Boggess, adding the study would protect the industrial community.

Many individuals may have contracted the disease before theY moved into the county, he said.

Dr. Orlan Wood of the county health department said studies conducted have not made distinctions regarding what part of the cancer deaths have occurred in the Veteran's Hospital, which has many out-of-county patients, or among retired seniors in Rossmoor.

Recent nationwide studies have found Contra Costa County to have one of the highest rates of cancer deaths among its population. Petroleum refineries on the county periphery have been blamed, along with other industries, for polluting the air with carcinogenic substances.

Supervisor rebuffs Geldermann on New Town racial charges

OAKLAND — Developer Harlan Geldermann's charge that pressure from "no - growthers" who have created a "lily - white island" in the Valley has been disputed by the county's first black supervisor, John George.

George, who represents Berkeley and part of Oakland, was one of three supervisors who voted against granting Geldermann a general plan amendment Sept. 30 for his proposed Las Positas New Town of 45,000 persons.

The issue will come before supervisors again early next month as part of the final review of Valley general plan revisions. The vote on New Town is expected to be 3-2 again.

In replying to Geldermann's earlier press release, George said that had the New Town been approved, it would have put many of its future residents in competition for jobs against people living in the core cities.

"Las Positas would have only provided from 35 to 54 per cent of the jobs needed by its residents," said George. "This means roughly 7,000 to 9,000 residents would be forced to find jobs elsewhere." "Those inner city residents needing jobs in places like Livermore, Fremont, Hayward and Oakland would have been most likely denied those jobs in competition with generally better educated clientele of Las Positas," said the supervisor.

Criticizing Geldermann's claim that labor and minorities will fight racism and try to get New Town built, George said that such an allegation "defies belief."

"Geldermann is simply a disgruntled salesman who has been told that his product is not good enough and is now calling his customers derogatory names," said George.

"Any low - income jobs existing in Las Positas for core city residents would have required a commute which would eat up $50 or $100 out of a paycheck," added George. The commuting would add to the area's smog problem, he said.

George doubted that Geldermann would deliver on a promise of low cost housing. The New Town plan was to charge less than builder's cost at the beginning of the phased development, then make up for it with high prices at the end, said George. But it's not clear the latter would have happened in view of cheap land in Manteca and Tracy.

New Town also could run afoul of special assessment district financing, as George claims has happened in Foster City. Special problems could turn off bond investors and hurt the low cost housing plan as a result. It's better to put low cost housing money into core cities where urban services already are assured, he said.

Agencies must agree on housing

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission has joined efforts with the state Department of Consumer Affairs to conduct a product safety information and education volunteer program.

County Consumer Affairs Commissioners Betty Moose and Concetta Jorgensen are supervising the educational campaign in Alameda County.

The first orientation meeting was held last month at the National American Red Cross Headquarters in Oakland.

Target audiences for the educational campaign include students, PTA's, the elderly and handicapped, health care professionals, fire and police departments, and civic groups.

For information and/or a presentation in southern Alameda County the number to call is 278-2094.

Amador offers chef

European chef Siegward R. Osicki created this white chocolate sculpture of the American Seal "Spirit of 76." Osicki is shown with the gold-medal-winning brown chocolate carving. In the foreground is a tallow carving sculpture of Napleon created by him and his team. Chef Osicki will demonstrate dishes for holiday entertaining for Amador Adult Education classes. The series will be the beginning of future gourmet presentations. The dishes, such as tomato prawn goblet, scallops sesame, duckling ala orange, crepe ala Reini (Bechamel sauce),sole verounique, and chocolate mousse, are attractive, simple to make and will be part of the class instruction. Amador Adult Education is now taking a waiting list for the next class. Those interested should call 462-0022 or stop by the Amador Adult Education offices in the trailer in the parking lot at Amador Valley High School.

Do saints glow?

Unique show set at Amador

PLEASANTON— "Do Saints Really Glow?", depicting the energy fields and "auras" which surround holy men and women, is the name of a slide show and presentation to be given at Amador Valley High at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Produced by Dorothy Fadiman and Michael Wiese, the show explores the nature of this energy and invites the observer to discover it in themself and others.

The show gained full page coverage in the San Francisco Chronicle recently after a presentation by Miss Fadiman at the California Institute for Transpersonal Psychology, held at the Airport Hilton Hotel on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Tickets for the show are now available through the Amador Valley High School office. Adult tickets are $2.50 and student tickets $2. The program will be held in the Amador Valley High School auditorium .

The Chronicle reports "the presentation was so moving that 'at least half the people in the audience were crying and weeping,' said Little Mary Sunshine during an interview in her Menlo Park home."

Her real name is Dorothy Fadiman. She is 37 years old and holder of a master's degree in speech therapy from Stanford, where her husband, Jim, a national authority on psychic phenomena, lectures in the Department of Design Engineering.

She has taught at the Esalen Institute in Big Sur.

During the past 10 years, according to articles on her resarch and investigations, she has probed the matter of mystical lights, the kind that are supposed to make saints glow. One result of her investigations is her slide show.

The slide show portion includes slides of famous paintings of halo-engulfed saints, slides of glorious golden rays of sun, slides of some scientific and some not-so-scientific findings.

The show was also a featured attraction at a big conference on "The Psychic Explosion" held at the Masonic Auditorium in San Francisco in mid-May.

Donlon witchcraft

Diana Junker's third grade class at Donlon School in the Murray School District made life-size witches in anticipation of Halloween. Here, some of the 29 class members show-off their witchcraft artistry. The class held a "Witch-of-the-Year" contest with each student giving a speech about his or her black and orange-clad broom-rider. Contests were also held in witches' brew-making and recitation of lines from MacBeth. The brews had all the elements of a "delicious", betwitching brew — powdered dinosaur bones, clove, food coloring, and dry ice! Another Donlon class, the second graders of Sueva Baldo, constructed haunted houses as part of a contest. Ghosts and goblins will reign supreme Monday when the school holds its annual Halloween costume parade starting at 12:30 p.m. (Times photo)

Protection tips given on Halloween mischief

Walk with your children and visit only neighbors and friends to make sure some real - life ghoul doesn't secrete razor blades or drugs in candy, apples, and other Halloween treats.

That's some of the advice for the All Souls' Eve holiday event offered by Concetta Jorgensen and Betty Moose of the Alameda County Consumer Affairs Commission.

Other tips: if wigs are used, make sure they are non - flammable. Use flashlights to get around in the dark. Masks obscure vision, so use makeup on faces. Any toy weapons should be made of cardboard, not hard, rigid material.

To protect against traditional vandalism, lock cars in the garage, lock up cars if they must be left on the street, put away all hoses, sprinklers, hanging plants, and flower pots, and lock your gates and turn on outdoor lighting.

Soldier wins home duty

Army Private Steven J. Dorsie, son of Joseph W. Dorsie, 2775 Carmon, Livermore, has been assigned to temporary duty as a recruiter aide at the United States Army Recruiting Station, 411 L St., Livermore.

A graduate of Foothill High School in Pleasanton, Dorsie has completed advanced infantry training at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Pvt. Dorsie will be at the Army Recruiting Station in Livermore until Nov. 21 to assist high school seniors and others interested in findig out what the United States Army has to offer.

Murray trustees award school bid

DUBLIN — The Murray School District board has accepted the bid of T.L. Bake and Son for conversion of Frederiksen School to full intermediate school operation.

The conversion bids became entangled in a procedural mishap a month ago when the prospective low bidder, McClellan Co. of Hayward, was learned to have submitted an estimate that didn't include electrical phases of the project.

The Murray district then sought the advice of county counsel. The latter's opinion led to the board Wednesday night allowing McClellan to withdraw and awarding of bid to T.L. Bake and Son in the amount of $249,844.

A representative of the district's architect, Shotu Chatterjee of Akol and Yoshii, told trustees Wednesday the project should take 240 calendar days. Thus, conversion of Frederiksen facilities will take the balance of the school year.

The project was originally estimated to take through early spring.

In other business, vice-president Mary Bobet of the Murray Teachers Association informed trustees of the postponing of the vote on the tentative contract agreement.

Murray board members are expected to act on the tentative agreement after teachers vote. Next regular Murray board meeting is Monday, Nov. 7.

Halloween's fire hazard

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Before parents let children go out trick - or treating this Halloween, State Fire Marshal Phil Favro had this advice Friday:

— Make sure costumes are flame - retardant, not loose or flimsy, and light - colored, preferably fluorescent or with reflective tape attached.

— Use makeup rather than face masks that obstruct vision or breathing.

— Put battery - powered lights, not candles, in jack - o - lanterns.

'Dracula' to direct Dublin Hi blood take

DUBLIN— Dreaded Count Dracula will be here Monday to supervise a blood-letting!

The gymnasium of Dublin High School will be the site and those students giving blood will be eligible for free gifts from Mc Donald's , Rossmoor Homes and Fidelity Savings.

Dracula, nee Dublin High teacher John Willoughby, will begin his "coverage" of the blood-giving at 8 a.m. Some 150 to 180 students will donate blood.

The event is part of "Operation Relay," the high school blood drive of the Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Association Blood Bank which netted some 4,000 units of blood last year. Donors are all students over the age of 17. A Halloween party will take place during the lunch hour, and the event is scheduled to end at 2 p.m.

The firms giving out the cards and premiums do so for all East Bay high schools participating in "Operation Relay."

PLEASANTON— The four remaining candidates for the position open on the Pleasanton Joint School District board will all be publicly interviewed by present trustees Tuesday night at 7:30.

Board members Thursday night, following a candidates night held at Harvest Park School, elected to invite all four remaining to final interviews. The quartet includes Ginger Moorefield, Raymond Goluba, Robert M. Coffey, and Karen L. Fritts.

At the candidates night, James R. Tomcik and Arthur Tenbrink informed the board adnd audience they were withdrawing.

When the Pleasanton board originally called for applications, nine persons responded to the call to fill the position formerly held by Joe Schwab. The term expires in March of 1979.

Coffey, 44, is a U.S. probation officer and has been in the probation field 17 years.

Previously active in Boy Scouts and Lions Club activities, he has two school-age children and is interested in serving "at a participatory, grass roots level."

Mrs. Fritts, a former Livermore drama and speech teacher, noted her involvement with the Fairlands School advisory committee and Vintage Hills School.

"I feel I will be able to listen when the community speaks," commented Mrs. Fritts.

Goluba, an engineer at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, has lived in Pleasanton eight years.

He said he believes "in more freedom of choice in curriculum for students," citing the program at Walnut Grove School where two of his children attend.

Mrs. Moorefield is a nursery school teacher, director and president of the board of Vineyard Ark.

Mrs. Moorefield says her time is flexible and could spend considerable time on board duties.

She is an aide at Alisal School and on the advisory committee at Vintage Hills.

Following presentations by each of the six candidates initially on the platform, questions from the audience were fielded by the four remaining after the announcements by Tenbrink and Tomcik.

Among the questions were ones concerning the candidates' positions on collective bargaining, specifically binding arbitration, agency shop and the public's role, articulation between grade levels, and the alleged sex education classes in the district.

Candy no treat on kids' teeth

After examining the evidence, I must conclude that sugar goodies are really sugar baddies. A sugary Halloween results in snaggle-toothed kids whose teeth look so bad that next year they won't need masks.

The California Dental Association and persons in the natural foods field seem to agree. But don't worry, as there are healthful alternatives to the candies laden with refined sugar and artificial coloring and flavoring chemicals.

Jane Kaminski of Pleasanton's Natural Trading Company, an outlet for natural foods, suggests fun-t ime activities utilizing natural foods, such as popping corn, bobbing for apples, and cracking walnuts.

"Do things more down home, instead of just opening up a candy bar," says Kaminski. "Hot apple cider with a cinnamon stick would be delicious." She also suggests fig bars and cookies made with natural ingredients.

If you investigate the natural foods store, or section of your super market, you will find "Trail Mix" which is comprised of many natural ingredients such as shredded coconut, raisins, dates, sunflower seeds, dried apples, roasted peanuts, pumpkin seeds, walnuts and apricots.

Other yummy treats are banana chips and all kinds of fruits and nuts, as well as sugarless gum.

Carob-covered malt balls, peanuts, or almonds are an alternative to chocolate. Kaminski suggests these be mixed in packets to give to children who come trick-or-treating.

Then there are the many types of cookies such as Date Nut bars, Oatmeal cookies, and whole wheat cookies made with honey, dates, walnuts and soy oil.

The dental association also suggests alternative handouts to trick-or-treaters such as balloons and toys. They go so far as to suggest handing out toothbrushes to counteract the refined sugar of the other treats in the kids' bags.

But if I were dressed up as Little-Bo-Peep or King-Kong and rang someone's doorbell, and giggling behind my mask, whispered or shouted, depending on my mood, "Trick or Treat," a situation I have never been in, even as a child, I would not be overjoyed to receive a toothbrush in my bag of treats. I would live in fear that the next militant house-holder might rip off my mask and brush my teeth for me.

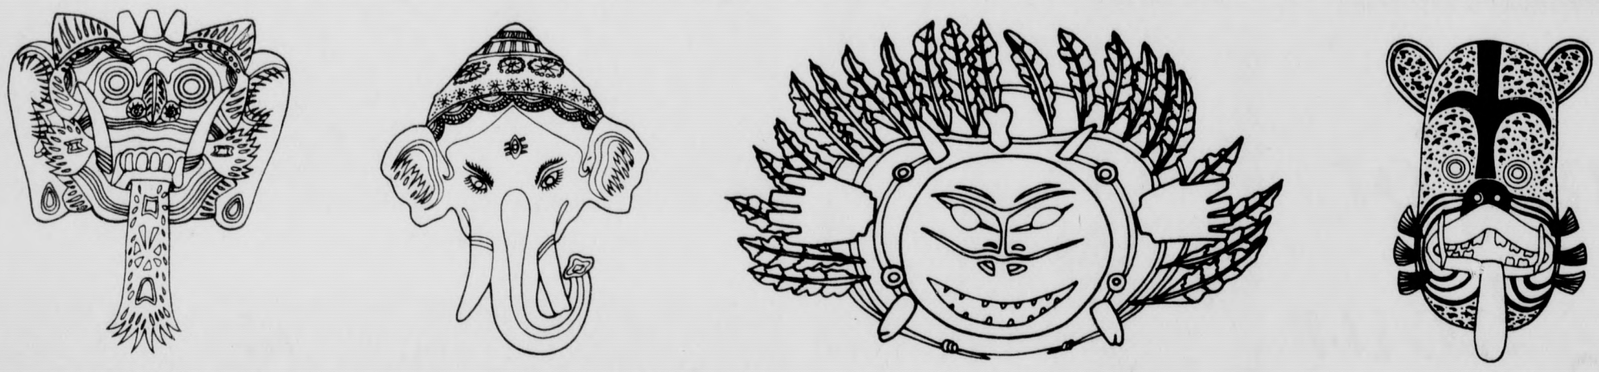
The California Dental Association does not suggest you go that far in fighting Halloween cavities, but they do suggest you teach your child proper brushing and flossing techniques to help avoid some of the dangers of feasting on sweets.

They offer these guidelines: Have your child eat his treats right after meals, rather than between meals. Then have him or her follow with a good brushing.

The main purpose of brushing is to remove plaque, say the tooth health experts. But, let's not get carried away examining the teeth of each little would-be vandal who visits your Front porch on Halloween night. Their parents, and they, might not appreciate it, good as your intentions might be, and anyway you might get bitten for your trouble.

— By Arline Butterfield

Natural foods and back-home fun make Halloween healthful says Jane Kaminski of Natural Trading Company of Pleasanton.



Spirits symbolized in classic masks

No doubt this Halloween there will be scads of pint-sized Darth Vaders meandering up and down the neighborhood with an assortment of candy collected along the way.

But, even if 'ol Darth's ominous black helmet is in the Halloween top ten next year, it will still have a long way to go to become as much a fixture as Sacha the Lion.

Never heard of Sacha? He hasn't gotten the press Vader has, but he represents a spirit as powerful as Vader's "force." The mask of Sacha has been a symbol for farmers in Korea for well over 500 years as a warning to villagers from Buddha to remain virtuous.

Masks come and go here each Halloween, but in other parts of the world masks hold more significance than a mere ploy to win a Milky Way bar — they are traditions.

"Masks of the World" is a full-color book by Debra Horner (Charles Scribner's Sons, N.Y., $6.95) that offers kids a change of pace from packaged Halloween costumes.

Nine full-sized masks modeled from collections in the Smithsonian Insitution are included in the book with directions for putting them together and a brief explanation of their importance.

You'll find that an Alaskan ceremonial dance mask is used in festivals to appeal to the spirit who brings good luck in hunting and fishing.

In Bali, there is a mask of Rangda, Queen of the Witches. According to Balinese legend Rangda was banished for using evil magic in her kingdom. The only force believed to subdue her is the King of the Demons, a dragon called Barong.

Mexico gave the United States a mask of a tiger as a Bicentennial gift. The tiger was known to ancient Mexicans as the spirit of darkness. The mask is used in a dance that shows the struggle between the farmers and the beloved and feared tiger.

In Japan, a colorful mask complete with horns and snout is used in Noh Theater which originated in the 14th century.

Masks don't always have to represent evilness, In India the mask of Ganesh, an elephant-headed god means knowledge and success. He is also the lord of the harvest and a source of good luck.

Even though you may get a good laugh at all the Wookies on Halloween this year, it is not wise to laugh at Ganesh's comical mask.

Legend has it that the Moon began a quarrel with Ganesh when he teased him about his looks. To this day, people in India do not look at the moon on Ganesh's birthday.

A mask of the lion is used at festivals and New Year's celebrations in China. The mythical creature represents ferocity and strength, and to those fortunate to catch a glimpse of him, he bestows good fortune.

Masks can represent the natural as well as the supernatural. In Africa the mask of the Lord of the Soil clan has patterns on the face to represent the sky, stars, a half moon and a rainbow.

Hoxhos, the Cannibal Bird, is used in dances in British Columbia to portray the mythical bird who lives in the mountains with the cannibal Baxbakulanu. During the dance he uses his long beak to peck at onlookers.

— By Marie Felde

'Superstar' closing hits stage prone trio

Dreams of three local women and countless other young California actors fell flat Thursday when the Concord Pavillion production "Jesus Christ Superstar" was forced closed by Actors Equity, the Los Angeles based artists' union.

Karen Smith and Danielle Blanchard of Pleasanton and Donna Chato of Livermore all had bit parts in the non-union hit benefit production for the California Youth Theater. Had, is the key word.

Of the 97 production actors, 10 belong to the AE union. And last Wednesday those 10 received a telegram from AE telling them to close the show or face the consequences.

Danielle Blanchard (left) and Karen Smith (right) say the show's closing made them mad, but working in the production literally changed their life-plan — for the good they think.

The "consequences" in that case could have been a $10.000 fine for each union actor, plus all could have been blackballed from AE associations.

Stars Ted Neeley and Carl Anderson, who performed in the film and Broadway versions of "Superstar," spent all day Thursday and most of Friday negotiating with AE so the production could complete its last sold-out performance. But nothing worked.

"Equity actors aren't allowed to perform in a non-equity production unless with special permission," explains Jill Cogan of Concord Pavillion.

"They (Neeley and Anderson) submitted the application for permission and assumed it was alright."

It wasn't. San Francisco's AE local complained to union headquarters and the union responded, weeks after the application had been submitted, by closing the show.

"Nothing this awful has happened to me in a long time," sighs Donna Chato, "I just can't believe it. It's not that AE's action was just because it wasn't. And it's not that we were doing anything wrong because we weren't. There was no reason."

"Superstar" was Chato's first opportunity to work with nationally .

"The attitude of the union to not listen makes me mad. I understand their position, but to come in after the show has been on and we're right in the middle of it — that I don't understand," says Chato.

For Karen Smith and Danielle Blanchard, the show meant their first on-stage appearances outside of high school productions. They were calm and suave about getting their parts when interviewed two weeks ago. Now they're mad.

"They told us (about the show closing) right before we were supposed to go on," recalls Karen. "We were mad, very mad. They explained why the show had to cancell, but I couldn't understand it." Considering the distasteful end to their first "big-time" show, it's surprising none of the three weren't discouraged about show businessk yet Smith and Blanchard say they are now even more determined to go on.

The two 17-year-olds had planned to head straight for Hollywood after high school graduation, but that was before "Superstar."

"Now we're going to try and get into the Boston Conservatory of Music," Smith says. "The people in the show really recommended it and they said you don't have to take physical education, math or anything like that...just english and drama related courses."

Who was it that once said some good comes out of everything?

The Concord Pavillion will give full refunds to anyone holding tickets to last Thursday's and Friday's shows.

— by Jayne Garrison

Donna Chato saw no reason for closing "Jesus Christ Superstar" and says the closing ranks high among the "worst thing in my life" category.

Sheriff's deputies win contract terms

OAKLAND — Alameda County Sheriff's deputies have won a long list of minor points in their salary negotiations with county management.

The memorandum of understanding approved earlier this month and released recently by supervisors includes a 4 per cent salary increase on Dec. 25 and another 4 per cent boost June 25, 1978.

Other changes include an increase in uniform allowance from $225 to $240; increased health benefits from a flat charge of $46 per month for each Deputy Sheriff's Association member to a floating schedule which provides a maximum of $88.80 per month fo members who enroll in a health plan; agreement by the county to discuss adjustment in the dental plan and health plan rates after Aug. 1, 1978.

Other points won include internal affairs division records must be purged three years following all case and any other legal adjudication arising from an incident; vacation and/or holiday increases granted to other unions in 1978 will be provided to the association; and educational benefits earned in 1978-79 may not be reduced by the following year's contract agreement.

Tax bill

You received your tax bill from the county this week and it made you mad. If you had access to a report just released by the California Taxpayers Association, you might really flip.

Analyzing all county budgets throughout the state over the last five years, Cal Tax comes up with some startling facts:

From 1972 through 1977, Alameda County had zero growth in population; but it enjoyed a 31.7 percent boost in assessed valuation, a spread you can probably apply to the assessment boost on your own home. But, budget requirements in that same five - year span skyrocketed by 44 percent in Alameda County. Result: a 13 cent increase in the overall tax rate, added to the 31 percent jump in assessed valuation, even while county population was unchanged.

In Contra Costa County the story is much the same. Population increase in five years 1.3 percent; assessed valuation grew by 52.9 percent; budget requirements up 31.9 percent. Contra Costans can at least bask in a nine - cent drop in their county wide tax rate over that five - year period.

Politicians talk a great deal these days about "tax relief." They should spend more time looking at expenditures ... generous wages and benefits for city and state employes; retirement programs that allow public servants to draw two and even three incomes at the public's expense; and then there are all those supports for "needy families."

Recent federal projections advise us we are not far from that day when more Americans will be supported by government, than there are those supporting government. Take a look at your last ten property tax statements, and you get an idea where you stand on that scale.

Trick or tragedy

Given the American hangup on tradition, we suppose there's no way to convince parents, or children, that roaming the streets in the dark of night in search of uncertain rewards is a dangerous kind of game.

The growing popularity of classroom parties and other organized Halloween events is at least a start in the direction of Halloween sanity. More and more parents are directing their tots toward that kind of "traditional observance" on the 31st of October. Still more should get in step.

It is not coincidental that the pre Halloween advisory distributed to news media every year at this time comes from those agencies concerned with fire and with crime, each seeing children as the victim.

We are asked to remind parents that costumes made of flimsy materials, or great gobs of sheeting wrapped around a small body, are an invitation to tragedy. So too a paper sack (or, God forbid, one made of plastic) stuck over a child's head can become an instant fire bomb.

In the home, consider a small flashlight inside that pumpkin instead of a candle. Beware of tinder - dry cornstalks and other "fall decorations" ... particularly close by a lighted fireplace.

There must also be concern for the goodies that some sick people give to children ... everything from dope - laden candy to cookies with razor blades inside. (The American Dental Society suggests even pure candy is a threat.)

Makes Halloween sound like a real fun holiday, right? It can be, if you keep your partying indoors, and keep your children off the streets.

If they must go, you go too

The week in retrospect

Tenure opposition

Half of the general public and 54 per cent of public school parents oppose tenure for teachers, according to the latest Gallup Poll of the public's attitude toward the public schools released earlier this fall in a nationally-circulated scholarly magazine.

Further, the poll concludes that "parents of school children are more apt to oppose tenure than those who have no children in school."

Gallup first-of-all gained assurances that all those polled knew what tenure was and what it involved. Only those 28 per cent who gave a correct answer were then asked whether they favored or opposed tenure.

But the number one problem facing the public schools, as brought out by the poll for the eighth time in the past nine years, is "poor student discipline."

In this year's survey, however, as relayed by the National School Boards Association, more people than ever before ranked "lack of discipline" at the top of the problems list.

Twenty-six per cent of the 1,506 adults (Age 18 and over) polled across the nation cited the aforementioned problem.

The next four "problems" were far back, percentage-wise, but close inorder — integration/segregation/busing, lack of proper financial support, difficulty of getting "good" teachers, and poor curriculum.

The poll covered numerous other areas and came forth with many interesting responses. Gallup learned, via the poll, that the typical child, 12 years and younger, on a school day spends approximately two hours viewing television, 45 minutes doing homework, and 30 minutes reading not connected with school work.

Among youngsters 13 and older, the typical child still spends two hours watching television, half an hour reading, but spends one hour doing homework. Only 35 per cent of the parents said they placed any limits on the amount of time their children could spend viewing television during the school week.

A Times survey of local school children, in the Murray and Pleasanton school districts, almost two years ago indicated that TV viewing was indeed substantial and not limited to late afternoon and early evening hours.

In fact, one of the unmistakable conclusions of our survey was that students in the elementary grades bracket witnessed lots of television beyond the "family viewing" hours.

Hence some youngsters' acquaintance with such dandies as "Barretta," "Kojak," and "Charley's Angels."

There were also some words for us in the media.

People in California and in the western states, particularly, "think the media is unfair and gives an inaccurate picture of the public schools." The complaint of educators that the news media gives too much play of a negative character to what is happening in the public schools is shared by 42 per cent of western residents. Thirty-six per cent though media coverage was fair and 22 per cent said they did not know.

This opinion was reversed in the nation as a whole, which may be some consolation.

Little wonder, then, tion a whole, which may be some consolhat there is no such thing as tenure in the media profession.

round the town

WASHINGTON — One of the big problems in touring this place is deciding what to skip.

A full week in the nation's capital — including a one - day respite in lovely Williamsburg — is just about enough to scrape the surface of this crowded cultural Capital. Let me share our D.C. scraps with you, along with a brief comment.

THE WHITE HOUSE — First impression is the relatively small site, especially when compared with homes for most other world rulers. Also impressive is easy accessibility to the public ... virtually every morning of the week, either through prior arrangement with your Congressman, or simply by getting in line anytime before 9 a.m. Tours include most of the first floorstate dining room, President's library, some of the gardens.

The structure's simplicity of design lends striking background to the countless treasures ... antique pieces from past presidencies, table settings from each administration, marvelous display of paintings, most of them by Americans and many on loan to the White House. Last year 1.7 million visitors toured this structure.

THE CAPITAL BUILDINGS — Always magnificent from the outside, not near that impressive once inside ... long, windowless hallways in need of bright paint job ... statues are scattered with little apparent patternSenate Chambers are plain, functional, little more than a large classroom. House Chambers are somewhat warmer, even though larger.

Highlight of that tour: Old Supreme Court Chambers, preserved much as they were used from 1819 through 1860, after Justices had been bumped around a dozen times.

SUPREME COURT BUILDING — Imposing, but not opulent. Chambers are surprisingly simple, public sits in close proximity to litigants and to the Justices. Also startling is the "six minute line" which allows continuous flow of spectators a brief look at the Chambers, even while cases are being heard. Learned that all Justices, including those now retired, retain offices in the building.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION — Actually eight structures, each focusing on one aspect of our history. Most startling is the new National Air and Space Museum, including actual craft used in man's first conquest of space, from Wright Brothers' Flyer to Appollo 11's command module Columbia. Many animated displays also, including puppet show depicting first baloon flight. Biggest danger here is being run over by hordes of school - age visitors!

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS — Outstanding! Finest piece of architecture in the downtown area. Save it for the end of your D.C. visit ... leaves you with a wonderful sense of what our heritage is all about.

There are of course a number of attractions beyond the Mall, and well outside Washington's core area. Two of the most famous on this list are churches. Each is quite a story.

The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception rates as one of the finest examples of Byzantine art in the western world.

If you like color, you will love the National Shrine. The place is huge, including a dozen delightful, small chapels and a first - rate cafeteria in the basement ... something you will appreciate after wandering around that Shrine for two hours, and then realizing you are far, far from anything like a good restaurant, or even a McDonald's.

The Shrine is a 40 - cent bus trip across town, and provides a first - hand look at Washington's colored section as a bonus. Both are recommended.

The Catholic edifice was started in 1920, ran into lots of trouble before reaching today's near - completed form. That is much like the story of Washington National Cathedral, Protestant counterpart to the Catholic Shrine.

"Probably the finest example of Gothic architecture in the United States," the National Cathedral was launched in 1907, is slated for completion in 1980. Building monuments to God is not near so readily accomplished in our nation's capitol as building monuments to bureaucracy.

One structure that falls somewhere in between those two categories is the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Beautifully located on the western extreme of the Mall, and offering a marvelous night - time view of the Potomac's many beauties, the Kennedy Center was a big boost for D.C.'s cultural life.

Three auditoriums are included in the center — the largest for symphonic concerts, two smaller theaters for the performing arts. Also two restaurants, one plush, one on the buffet style.

All of the major attractions along the East and West Malls, from the Houses of Congress to the Kennedy Center and on to Arlington Cemetery can be reached via Tourmobile. One $4 ticket ($2 for children) lets you on and off the Tourmobile at any stop, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Halloween fun

It's a shame that good clean fun in the spirit of Halloween got ruined by a few deviates of the door to door tradition who planted razor blades in candy apples.

What ever happened to the neighborhood's haunted house whose owner used his wits for creating hobgoblins and pumpkins that talk and other amusements that made kids laugh and grown-ups grin.

There was such a place in the town of Danville (Indiana that is), where trick or treaters by the hundreds would swarm to its doorsteps to check out what new spooks the owner had rigged up for the season. Some parents even drove their kiddies in from the big city of Indianapolis — 20 miles away.

The house was spooky enough at night without any elaborate display to scare the little stinkers with. It was a brick split-level that rJng/ sat on a grassy half acre hill requiring visitors to climb a long winding stairway in order to reach the front door. Anyone standing in the driveway could not see the candy-seekers on the stairs because shrubs and cedar trees guarded both sides of the wrought iron railing.

Every year on the week of Halloween, the guy who lived there set out three pumpkins capped with black witches with hats at key locations en route to the front door. Underground wires linked speakers inside those jack-o'-laterns to an intercom system controlled from the house.

The man at the helm could peek from the drapes of the picture window and see the little jokers who came not only for a few treats but also to soap windows of the Chevrolet parked in the driveway. What's more, he could make the pumpkins talk to the tricksters and to this day they are fascinated as to how those vegetable heads could verbalize.

It was a great gimmick. Everybody trusted the man who had the talking pumpkins. The kids loved it. The parents applauded it. And the lady of the house could not buy enough candy to drop in every bag. Another device this guy rigged up was a machine that made four bats of the vampire variety fly around lamp post at the driveway's In a entrance. He mounted a motor from a rotisserie on top the lamp post and dropped the bats cut from sheet metal by clear fishing line tied to the extended spits.

Now that's what's called good clean fun at Halloween dreamed up by none other than Buck Rogers.

ERA - another view

It's ironic that though "liberty and justice for all" has been part of the Pledge of Allegiance for some time now, American women still have to justify wanting part of that for themselves.

A case in point is, of course, the Equal Rights Amendment, which simply states that equality will not be denied on the basis of sex.

In a Friday Times column, Al Fischer alleges that the ERA will a) undermine the family unit b) force people "to accept homosexuals and lesbians" c) be "facist and oppressive" and d) demean those who live in a family situation.

Were this true, of course, the ERA would have suffered a fate worse than death many months ago. And countless groups like the AFL-CIO, League of Women Voters and the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights never would have lent support to it.

The ERA strengthens the basic premise on which American society was built — that our government must respect and protect each citizen's right to equal opportunity and freedom.

Social issues — abortion, homosexuality, the family unit — are not, and never have been, a concern of the ERA. Each man and woman in this country must decide his or her individual feelings on those and other very personal issues.

Fischer suggests that he is being forced to "accept" other American citizens who have chosen a different lifestyle homosexuals and lesbians.

He also says he's being coerced into supporting "the advancement of women and minorities" to make up up for "alleged past discriminatory practices."

The ERA will not force Fischer or anyone else to think of homosexuals, women or minorities as citizens with an equal chance or rights to equal opportunities. Those are personal beliefs and choices.

But the admendment will, by law, give women tthe right to equal pay for equal work, equal employment, freedom from sexual discrimination and an equal legal status with men.

It's all very simple — as simple as "liberty and justice for all."

Insanity

Those of us too busy with a lot of other concerns have a big debt to folks outside the Valley concerned about GE's nuclear reactor. I have vivid memories of the apathy in the Valley over social questions the past 10 years and the nuclear power question is no exception. You would think that the Valley Ecology Center, with so many members working at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, would have a nuclear study group and would be in the forefront to either shut down Vallecitos or keep close tabs on it. The truth is that the center is barely alive.

I think it's insane to have nuclear power. But even if we can't eradicate it from the U.S. overnight, we can at least get rid of it in California. Someone viewing the state from 100 miles up must think this is a looney place. The sun shines here most of the time and we have earthquake faults every mile or two. So what do we do? We put in nuclear reactors, subject to severe problems in earthquakes, and we skimp on solar research.

We are on the consumption treadmill. The Babbit psychology of "bigger is better" is still with us. Oh, cars have become a little smaller. Engines get better gas milage. But the real problem is not attacked: our lifestyles. The sane thing to do is outlaw automobiles, if one really wants to conserve energy. It also would restore our social fabric by getting us all togethr again on public transportation. But that's too "too socialistic", I guess, for the American Ethic.

I have just heard some interesting horror stories from some friends who are in town for a few days. One of them is allergic to smog and pesticides. They have been roaming the West looking for a clean place to live. They found one: near Yellowstone National Park.

My friends met someone on their journey who devised a test for pesticides. He took the level of pesticide permitted on your dinner plate, diluted it to a hundreth of that strength, and put it under a person's tongue. Reactions varied with the pesticides. There were sudden anger, people screaming, deep eroticism, severe depression — all proof of what chemicals do to people's nerves. We don't get such sudden reactions from commercial food, but it's there in the long run. It makes sense to me. If the drug, Ritalin, can affect children's nerves, and if food dyes could have the same nervous effect on children, it's apparent pesticides can, too.

I see by the Associated Press that one commonly used California pesticide has been declared "definitely cancer - causing and another probably is."

Yesterday I heard that someone at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory ripped out his entire vegetable garden after personally analyzing a pesticide he had sprayed on it.

It all illustrates what an eminent scientist told me a couple of years ago. "We make new discoveries, then put them on the market before we fully test all of the implications," he said. He was talking about the discovery of a gas in the 1920's which now is causing the "greenhouse effect" in our atmosphere. But it obviously applies to pesticides, and, I think, nuclear power.

Scientists who are pro - industry always come back with the argument that there is a risk in everything. That's true, but certain phenomena are sure things, obviously detrimental to the planet earth, and atomic energy is one of them.

When will the madness end? I don't know, but I'm glad to see a few people are concerned enough to get out the information and do something about it.

Berry's World

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I worry about my wife because we both work. Our hours are the same yet she seems to need to be alone and quiet more than I. I've asked her many times if she's angry with me. Although she says she isn't, I find it hard to believe or accept that she's going to her room just to read. It depresses me to be alone. I grew up in a large family. In my home when someone went to his room, we assumed that he was mad or that somebody had done something to offend him. We felt togetherness was important. Maybe that's why I feel hurt when my wife takes off. Am I wrong? — P.K.

DEAR P.K.: I think it's important for couples to accept and respect each other's individual needs. For some people it's vital for their well-being and emotional health to be alone for certain periods of the day. This doesn't mean they're angry, sad, or hurt. It merely means they want some time of solitude to think, meditate or perhaps repair frayed nerves.

Dr. John Eccles, Nobel prize winner for his research on nerve cells, feels that unless the average man and woman get away from the bombardment of news, trivia and violence that assaults them daily, their minds become filled with useless thoughts and a kind of chaos results. Every person should take some time each day when he can sit quietly. This enables him to keep his perspective and prevents him from being overwhelmed.

You may not feel you need this, and you may not, but your wife obviously does. Try to understand and allow her this freedom. Too much togetherness can destroy marriage. When both partners maintain their individuality, each has more to bring the other. This adds stimulation to their relationship and keeps it alive.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My 30-year-old daughter recently got married. We were always unusually close, even after her marriage. Lately, though, she seems remote. I mentioned this to her husband and he admitted that he too has noticed a kind of coolness and depression that didn't use to be there. When I asked her if she was down in the dumps, she said she was. Either she doesn't know why, or else she isn't telling me or her husband. Usually, one afternoon a week we go shopping togeher. Last week, she canceled. When I called her back she wasn't home so I'm afraid she may be seeing another man. Is there anything I can do? — D.D.

DEAR D.D.: No, I'm afraid not. This is a personal matter and if she wants to discuss it, if it's true, then it's up to her to bring it up. In other words, I believe that unless she comes to you about some specific problem and asks for help, there's absolutely nothing you can do.

I think you may be leaping to the wrong conclusion, however. Your daughter could be going through a period of mild depression caused by some kind of stress she herself is not aware of. Try not to pressure her, but let her know you're there in case she needs you.

If she is seeing another man, and if she does confide in you, then it will put you in a very difficult position with her husband, for no matter how much you like him, your first loyalty must be to your daughter. If she trusts you enough to confide in you, then you're honor-bound not to break that faith.

Until you have solid evidence, assume that her depression is temporary and is something she will work through in her own time.

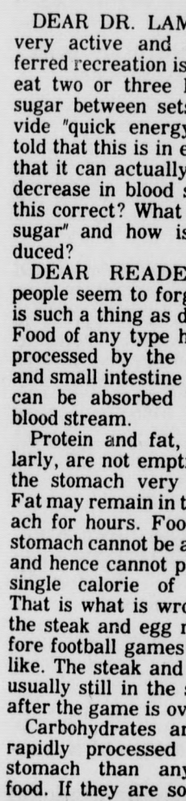
SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

"What do you have that's biodegradable?"



Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB–I am very active and my preferred recreation is tennis. I eat two or three lumps of sugar between sets to provide "quick energy." I am told that this is in error and that it can actually cause a decrease in blood sugar. Is this correct? What is "blood sugar" and how is it produced?

DEAR READER--Most people seem to forget there is such a thing as digestion. Food of any type has to be processed by the stomach and small intestine before it can be absorbed into the blood stream.

Protein and fat, particularly, are not emptied from the stomach very rapidly. Fat may remain in the stomach for hours. Food in the stomach cannot be absorbed and hence cannot provide a single calorie of energy. That is what is wrong with the steak and egg meal before football games and the like. The steak and egg are usually still in the stomach after the game is over.

Carbohydrates are more rapidly processed by the stomach than any other food. If they are soluble as sugar is, the liquid solution is rapidly emptied into the small intestine where it can be broken down and absorbed for immediate use as energy.

Sugar is glucose and fructose hooked together into one molecule. The molecule is broken down in the small intestine and within 30 minutes to one hour after ingesting a solution of sugar water you will reach a peak blood level of these substances. The fructose is converted to glucose in the energy process. All carbohydrates from any and all sources eventually are converted to glucose for energy. This includes the carbohydrates in cereals, fresh fruits and vegetables.

The sugar you eat between sets does provide energy if you need it. Blood sugar is a general term and could include glucose and fructose and even galactose (part of milk sugar). The major portion of it is glucose. We are particularly interested in blood glucose in terms of diagnosing diabetes or hypoglycemia (often called low blood sugar, but it really means low blood glucose level).

It is not true that the sugar you eat between sets will lower your blood sugar. Some sensitive people who have hypoglycemia will have an excess outpouring of insulin which in turn may cause a rebound low blood glucose level because of the insulin action.

Exercise causes the body to burn glucose. This can significantly lower the blood glucose level. That is why a diabetic who takes insulin may need to eat more or take less insulin if he is going to exercise. The exercise and regular amount of insulin combined may cause an insulin reaction–hypoglycemia. Diabetics need to regulate both their food intake and their exercise to maintain a reasonably stable level of blood glucose.

Q. "WHAT IS THE ORIGIN OF THE WORD ECHO?"
A. THE WORD ECHO COMES FROM A GREEK WORD MEANING SOUND OR NOISE. IT WAS PROBABLY NAMED FOR THE NYMPH ECHO IN GREEK MYTHOLOGY

Perhaps you have heard the sound of your voice echoing back from the side of a cliff.

The word "echo" comes from an old Greek mythology.

According to the myth, Echo was a beautiful mountain nymph (a nature spirit). Echo loved to talk. She would prattle aimlessly for hours to anyone in her company.

Tiring of her incessant chattering, the gods took away Echo's own voice. All she could do was repeat the last words that other people spoke.

Echo loved a handsome Greek youth named Narcissus. But Narcissus, disgusted with hearing Echo repeat every word he said, refused her love.

Echo was so grieved that she faded away until all that was left of her was her voice, which to this day can be heard repeating the words of others.

And that is how the ancient Greeks explained the echo.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand was played 20 years ago in the last quarter of an important team match.

You are in seven spades and it is a cinch to see that your opponents would also be there.

Your team was well behind at the three-quarter mark and you realize that your only chance to win will be to make seven while your opposite team goes down.

The hand is going to depend on taking a successful heart finesse and when you get around to it you have managed to eliminate everything but hearts and East has discarded one. Hence, he started with four—West with three—so the odds are slightly in favor of playing East for her ladyship.

Pedro Cabral of New York decided after long thought that the other South would take the percentage play. He played West for the queen and made the grand slam.

Now, what would you do if you were at the other table and only wanted to make the same play that Pedro made.

The other South took the percentage play, lost the slam, but still won the match by a very small margin.

What You'll See on TV

YOU REMEMBER the story: Cinderella goes to the Sugar Hill Ball in a limo, meets the dashing marine and loses her sneaker rushing out at midnight. You don't? Well, you will in the all-black musical version, called "Cindy," that ABC airs in December. It stars newcomer Charlaine Woodard as the girl from Harlem. The production is being readied by James L. Brooks, Stan Daniels, David Davis and Ed Weinberger, the team largely responsible for "Rhoda" and "Phyllis" and the Mary Tyler Moore and Bob Newhart shows.

"LADY CHATTERLY'S Lover," D. H. Lawrence's classic and controversial novel about a wealthy woman's affair with her young caretaker, will be produced as a two-hour NBC movie starring Joanne Woodward in the title role. Production will start early next year in England for presentation during the 1978-79 season.

"LOOSE CHANGE," the dramatization of Sara Davidson's best-selling book about the impact of the turbulent 1960s on three young women, is being made into a six-hour NBC novel for television. Christina Raines, Laurie Heineman and Season Hubley star as the women whose evolution into the 1970s reflects the turmoil of their formative years during America's era of protest. The mini-series will be presented in three two-hour segments.

"PERFECT GENTLEMEN," a motion picture for television starring Lauren Bacall, Ruth Gordon, Sandy Dennis and Lisa Pelikan is being filmed in Claremont for CBS television. The film, to be shown later this season, stars Robert Alda, Stephen Pearlman, Steve Collura and Dick O'Neill and is the story of three women with totally different backgrounds who share a common bond in that each needs a large sum of money and each has a husband serving time in prison.

You can hear about Dublin's history

DUBLIN — Dublin's Heritage Center will be spicing up its tours with historical information contributed by Virginia Bennett, head librarian at Dublin Public Library.

Bennett tape recorded some of the information. She has put other facts in writing.

The aim of the tours, along with Heritage Center displays, is to provide people with the historical background of Alameda County in general and Dublin in particular. The Center, on Donlon Way, is sponsored by the Dublin Historical Preservation Association (DHPA).

Bennett first mentioned some of Dublin's early settlers.

She told about the shipboard romance that blossomed into marriage between Jeremiah Fallon and Eleanor Murray. Fallon, Michael Murray and his sister Eleanor were coming to America in 1833 from Elfin County, County Roscommon, Ireland to escape the potato famine when the couple fell in love. They became engaged to be married before the ship docked in New York.

But it was five years before the wedding could take place. Fallon, a shipbuilder by trade, went to New Orleans and built two boats. He used them in his business of ferrying logs. Michael and Eleanor remained in New York to work.

In 1838, Fallon felt financially secure enough to send for Eleanor. They were married in New Orleans.

Several years later, the Fallons and Murray spent five months coming West on a wagon train. Some waggoners took time to rest and repair equipment before tackling the last ridge of mountains. Those remaining behind became part of the ill-fated Donner Pass party. When Fallon and Murray learned of the tragedy, they went back to try and rescue the victims.

Fallon and Murray first lived in Mission San Jose. Eleanor remained there when her husband and brother joined the '49 gold rush. When they returned, legend has it that Eleanor had collected more gold dust than the men. Being one of the few English speaking Mission residents, travelers enjoyed talking to her. She also fed them and they would leave a pinch of gold dust in payment.

In 1847, Catherine Fallon was born. She was the first child of other than Spanish or Indian parentage to be born in Mission San Jose. Shortly after, her brother John died from eating unripe plums picked in the Mission gardens. Twin girls had died earlier of other maladies. Another daughter, Eleanor, survived. She was six-months old when the family made the trek to California from St. Joseph, Missouri. Ann, Rodger and William Fallon were born later.

In 1852, Fallon and Murray came to the Dublin area. They bought 1,000 acres from Jose Amador. Each built a house for their families.

When Alameda County was created from parts of Contra Costa and Santa Clara counties in 1853, Murray and Fallon served on the Alameda County board of supervisors. Another pioneer, James Witt Dougherty, also became a county supervisor.

Dougherty was a one-man chamber of commerce where the Dublin area was concerned. He was instrumental in convincing many easterners into coming out here.

Dougherty enjoyed buying land. By 1860 he owned nearly four leagues of San Ramon Rancho plus some Santa Rita Rancho land to the south. He imported the first Clydesdale draft horses into the area.

For years Dublin was known as Dougherty's Station. The Post Office under that name was established on Feb. 15, 1860. On Jan. 18, 1896, the name was shortened to Dougherty. It remained that until Feb. 29, 1908. In checking the Great Register of Alameda County Voters, some men gave their residence as Dougherty's Station; others, Dublin.

By 1859, Dougherty's tax bill was $31,800. This was 44 and one-half per cent more than he paid for 10,000 acres. He had added to his holdings which influenced his tax bill somewhat.

Some other pioneer settlers names are Cronin, Donlon, Frederiksen, Lydiksen, Nielsen and Wells.

Several of these settlers and their families are buried in the cemetery on the Heritage Center site. The cemetery was established in 1859.

The area had been used for burials before that time. When Tom Donlon fell off the roof of St. Raymond's Church while helping with construction, the cemetery was formally established. He was 25 years old when he died.

St. Raymond's Catholic Church, adjacent to the Heritage Center, was built in 1859. Until then, the closest Sunday services were held at Mission San Jose. St. Raymond's Church was first served by an Oakland priest who rode over once on horseback once a month.

Later, the church came under the supervision of St. Leander's Church in San Leandro. In 1961, it came under the jurisdiction of St. Augustine's in Pleasanton. St. Raymond's is owned and being restored by the Amador-Livermore Valley Historical Society.

The Old Murray School building, built of redwood in 1856, has been moved to the Heritage Center site.

Rush job

PLEASANTON — City council's vote last Tuesday to accomodate the Swim Club and keep the Aquatic Center open this winter left city recreation planner with a problem — how to organize a winter schedule before the season opens tomorrow. With only three week-days to work with, the recreation department has put together eight varied swim classes for the community. Those include Slim and Trim, a water exercise class for non-swimmers; regular swimming lessons; Scuba Diving; Advanced Lifesaving; and Swim-and-Stay-Fit, a class in which adults can develop their own aquatic fitness program. Interested persons can contact the Aquatic Center, 846-1720 for more information.

Granada senior bids for $1,000

LIVERMORE — Gene Lara, a Granada High senior, will compete with other California seniors for one of two $1,000 scholarships in the Century III Leaders Scholarship competition.

Gene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manrico Lara of 1144 Farmington Way, won the competition at his school based on demonstrated leadership potential and viewpoints, presented in a written form, on particular issues that America could confront. Students were asked to give possible issues and how such challenges should be met.

Runner-up at Granada is Chrysanne Lagiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Lagiss of 1508 Wetmore Road.

Gene scored highest at the school in a current events examination and essay writing competition. If Gene wins one of the two $1,000 state scholarships he will be eligible to compete for a $10,000 national scholarship. The two California winners will receive all-expense-paid trips to the third annual Century III National Leadership Seminar in Williamsburg, Feb. 14-17, to participate in seminars on current issues.

Valley military news reported

SAN RAMON — Navy aviation structural mechanic 1.C. Owen R. Ruede, son of Phyllis L. Kenke of 6976 Wisteria St., is currently on extended deployment in the Western Pacific.

He is a member of Helicopter Antisubmarine Squadron 6, homebased at the North Island Naval Air Station in San Diegio. His squadron is stationed aboard the aircraft carrier USS Constellation as a unit of the Seventh Fleet.

During the cruise his unit will participate in training exercises with other Seventh Fleet units and with ships of allied nations. His squadron operates the SH-2F "Seasprite" helicooeter and its primary missions are antisubmarine warfare and antiship missile defense.

He and his fellow squadron members recently visited Singapore and crossed the Equator where those crew members who made the crossing for the first time were initiated into the "Ancient Order of the Deep" and given the title of "Trusty Shellback."

PLEASANTON — Navy fire control technician 2.C. Tim J. Lehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Lehman of 5017 Golden Rd., is currently participating in exercise "Fortress Lightning" in the Republic of the Phillipines.

Lehman joined the Navy in October, 1973 and is currently a crew member aboard the guided missile cruiseer USS Chicago, homeported in San Diego.

He is one of more than 14,000 sailors and marines taking part in the two-week exercise which includes 30 ships and Seventh Fleet aircraft along with elements of the Phillipine Navy and Marine Corps. The exercise is designed to provide training in amphibious landing techniques and operations offshore.

LIVERMORE — Navy repairman 1.C. Robert W. Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Wood of 1401 Almond Ave., is currently participating in exercise "Fortress Lightning" in the Republic of the Phillipines. Wood joined the Navy in September, 1963 and is currently serving as a crewmember aboard the tank landing ship USS Bristol County homeported in San Diego.

LIVERMORE — Navy air controlman 3.C. David T. Lutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Lutz of 615 Sonoma Court, is serving as crew member aboard the Navy's newest aircraft carrier, the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower which was commissioned Oct. 18.

assigned to the Eisenhower. With her displacement of 94,000 tons, overall length of 1,092 feet and flight deck area of 4½ acres she and her sister ship, the USS Nimitz, are the largest naval vessels ever built.

Dublin — Senior Airman Michael P. Mathisen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal D. Sayre of 6855 Lancaster Rd., have reported for duty at Upoer Heyford RAF station, England.

Cal makes it a race

Defensive effort keys USC upset

BERKELEY — Over the years University of California football teams have been known for their potent offenses, directed by the likes of Craig Morton, Steve Bartkowski, and Joe Roth.

But it was Cal's defense which gave the Golden Bears a 17-14 upset victory over Southern California before a thrilled sellout crowd of over 76,000 Saturday in a game dedicated to Roth's memory.

A glance at the final statistics doesn't indicate the fine job turned in by Cal's defense — USC, now 3-1 in Pac-8 play, picked up 301 yards rushing and 132 passing. But time and again the Bears' charged-up defensive line burst through on critical third and fourth-down plays to nail the Trojan's much-heralded runners for losses in evening their Pac-8 mark at 2-2.

And while the line was containing, if not completely stopping, USC's running game, the defensive secondary was giving Trojan quarterback Rob Hertel a tough time of it. Anthony Green led the effort with two interceptions, including one with just one minute left in the game which sealed the Bears' victory.

Junior defensive end Ralph DeLoach, who turned in nine tackles, including two behind the line of scrimmage, said part of the Trojans' problem was their insistence on sticking with their running game.

"I think they were probably a little overconfident. They felt they could just blow us off the ball, so they stayed on the ground," he explained.

"There were several basic plays we knew we'd have to stop, and we did," he added. "They should have balanced their attack earlier, because by the time they did pass they were behind and had to force it; and we lead the conference in pass defense."

Cal's defense got tested early. On the first play from scrimmage Charlie Young threw a pass right into the arms of USC's Ricky Odom to give the Trojans the ball only 28 yards from the goal line. But Charles White, the latest in a long string of brilliant Southern California tailbacks, was able to gain only 4 yards in three carries, forcing the Trojans to settle for a field goal. Frank Jordan's 31-yard attempt sailed short and to the right, though, and the Bears' defense had held in a pattern that would be repeated throughout the afternoon.

Cal's first score was set up by Green's initial interception. The senior safety cut in front of intended receiver Kevin Wiliams to pick the ball off at the USC 46. Green then raced down the sideline all the way to the three.

Fullback Paul Jones bulled over off left tackle on the next play to give Cal a 7-0 lead with six minutes left in the first quarter.

Neither team was able to score the rest of the half. Cal's offense had trouble getting untracked, largely because the Trojans completely shut off the Bears' running attack. The Bears netted only 10 yards rushing in the half.

The second half was different, though, as Jones began picking up good yardage up the middle, but not before USC's Dwight Ford raced 62 yards up the right sideline after breaking several to set up the Trojans first score. Lynn Cain scored the touchdown on a four-yard run to tie the score at seven.

On the next series, Jones and company went to work as Cal drove to USC's one-yard line. Jim Breech then booted an 18-yard field goal to give the Bears a lead they would hold the rest of the way.

Cal quarterback Charlie Young began to find his range later in the third quarter after nearly having a number of passes picked off. Two key third-down passes, to Floyd Eddings and George Frietasi highlighted the drive that brought Cal its final touchdown two minutes into the fourth quarter.

Young himself took the ball over from the one-yard line.

USC was able to put on one final offensive spurt, though, as Hertel finally began passing. He hit Calvin Sweeney, who had gained a step on two Cal defenders for a 31-yard touchdown.

The game was marred by numerous personal foul penalties and erupted into a full-scale brawl midway through the fourth quarter after several Cal defenders had dragged White out of bounds. White, DeLocah, and Cal's Anthony Washington started it, and both benches had emptied before order was restored.

Stanford swims past Beavers, 26-7

CORVALLIS, Ore. — The Stanford Cardinals participated in a rendition of slippery, slide against the Oregon State Beavers here yesterday, and did much better than expected on the rain - soaked astroturf.

The Cards washed out the Beavers 26-7, before 20,000 miserable fans.

"I'm happy we won," Stanford head coach bill Walsh said. "We were concerned at the start because of the rain. We couldn't handle the ball, and we couldn't throw. It was difficult to throw all day," he explained.

Maybe they didn't throw like they have been this season, but Heismann Trophy candidate Guy Benjamin was still able to complete 17 of 29 passes for a respectable 176 yards.

But the Cards elected to play conservative ball control in the first quarter. In their first possession, Phil Francis, on consecutive rushing first downs, advanced the ball to the Stanford 42.

Freshman Darrin Nelson, who was contained well by the Beaver defense, hopped over the middle of theline to put the Cards in Oregon territory. Two plays later, Benjamin unloaded to James Lofton for 29 yards to put the Cards on the Beaver 32. Nelson broke loose for a gain of 15. But, the Cards couldn't move effectively again.

On the fourth down, freshman Ken Naber sloshed onto the field to attempt a 26 - yard field goal, but the kick was booted under the crossbar, and the Beavers took over as the clock ran out on a scoreless first quarter.

The running backs for both teams had trouble getting any acceleration on the astroturf, which blanketed a couple of inches of water. Waves splashed up on every tackle, and rain - caused errors hurt the Cards. Francis, Nelson, and Lofton all dropped passes, and Benjamin even fumbled the sloppy pigskin. Oregon's experienced steady, heavy rain for the past four days.

Early in the second quarter, Lofton held on to a 25 - yard pass from Benjamin and John Finley slid 25 yards to put the Cards in field goal range on the Beaver 26. When the Cards were moved out to the 31 on a penalty, Naber put the Cards on the board with a floating, 48 - yard kick to make it 3-0 Stanford.

With five minutes left in the half, Benjamin connected with Lofton for a gain of 13, and Nelson scrambled 14 to set the Cards up on the Beaver ten. Lofton set a new record for touchdown receptions in a single season when he caught his tenth: a ten - yard lob from Benjamin. Naber got another one over to give the Cards a 10-0 edge.

"My hands were wet and frozen, but there weren't that many passes, so it wasn't too bad. The game weny by really quick. We didn't have to do that much," Lofton said through chattering teeth. He said the astroturf wasn't as much as a determinant as the rain. "The field was really slippery and the ball gets heavier when it's wet," he explained.

The Beavers opened the third quarter with a strong offensive drive, grappling their way down to the Stanford nine. On fourth down and three, OSU quarterback John Norman found Terry Beck in the end zone to put the Beavers back into contention, 10-7.

Finley carried the ball 21 yards on the first play after the kickoff on a breakaway run for the longest rush of the day.

Lofton and Finley were able to spot the holes in the OSU secondary and began to give the illusion that they had dry hands, as Stanford penetrated deep into Beaver territory on a 46 - yard passing drive.

Stanford took a 17-7 lead in the opening minute of the fourth quarter via a 22 - yard pass into the end zone from Benjamin to Nelson, and a Naber kick.

The Beavers, becoming dangerously accurate, moved the ball to the Stanford 45. Norman swung the ball in desperation, and Cardinal freshman Robby Chapman, all alone, captured the pass and Stanford ttok over the ball on their own 20. But, the Beaver defense held them and Brad Fox was forced to punt.

Stanford, not to be outdone, pressured the Beavers into a fourth - and - on situation, and the Beavers unsuccessfully decided to go for it. The Cards took charge on their own 49.

But defense became the name of the game in the final quarter, and the Beavers got another chance from the Oregon State nine. Stanford freshman Tom Hall made his presence known when he sacked Norman in the OSU end zone for a safety, the first this year. Norman didn't have a chance to blink as he was hit, and the Cards cushioned their lead, 19-7.

Following a 53 - yard drive, Benjamin compieted his third scoring pass of the game when he connected with Gordie Banks for a nine - yard touchdown pass. Naber's kick made the final 26-7 slaughter.

Walsh was energetic in his praise of his defense, which he relied on heavily becuase of the weather conditions.

"The highlight of the game was our defense. We intercepted two passes and made a safety. It was our best defensive game of the year. It gives us a lot of hope," Walsh said. "Today's results make it very interesting in the Pac-8. Don't count USC out. It's certainly a race now," he noted.

The Cardinals play USC in Los Angeles Saturday. Both teams have one loss in conference play.

HAYWARD — Chico State safety Louis Young carried an intercepted pass 23 yards for a first - quarter score and the Wildcats got five more turnovers to gain a 7-7 tie with Hayward State Saturday in a Far Western Conference football game.

In addition to Young's interception of a pass by Kevin Mauser, Chico had three other interceptions and recovered two Hayward fumbles. The Wildcats committed only one turnover in the game which the Pioneers dominated by rolling up 383 offensive yards to Chic's 162 and piling up a 24-7 edge in first downs.

Azusa Pacific 13, St. Mary's 6

ST. MARY'S — Quarterback Greg Cano came off the bench in the second half to lead Azusa Pacific to its winning touchdown in a 13-6 football victory over St. Mary's Saturday.

Cano paced a winning drive with identical 34 - yard pass plays to Don Israel and Steve Meller, setting up a one - yard scoring plunge by Alex Delucia.

Azusa, 4-2, had scored earlier on a six - yard rollout by quarterback Rick Dutton, while St. Mary's, 3-4, got all its scoring from kicker Kevin Shea, who had fi goals of 49 and 35 yards.

Humboldt State 19, San Francisco State 13

SAN FRANCISCO — Kurt Schumacher scored on a 63 - yard run in the first period to pace Humboldt State to a 19-13 Far West Conference football victory over San Francisco State Saturday.

Humboldt State is 4-2-1 overall and 1-1-1 in the FWC, while San Francisco State is 4-4 and 2-2.

On Sports

What if they gave a pennant race and nobody stayed?

What if they had the two best passers in the league on one field and the two winningest teams in the league on another?

And what if one of the passers, regaining his starting spot only that week, threw for 203 yards and two touchdowns while the other gained 151 yards through the air and also accounted for a pair of touchdowns?

And what if the league's only unbeaten team was backed against its own goal with eight minutes to go, already trailing by seven points? What if they stopped the favorite for the league title on fourth and goal?

And what if they marched 99 yards for a touchdown, tying the game and keeping them atop the league standings for the longest span in history?

What if it rained? What if school spirit went out the window and everyone left at halftime? What if they all said, "Heck, we need not stay. For we can catch the scores any old time on KFRC. Or listen to the game on KKIQ. Or, better still, leave us forget this nonsense entirely and watch the Rockford Files on television."

What if ... what if ... what if? I'll tell you what if. If all that happened, we'd have an exact replica what occured Friday night in the East Bay Athletic League.

Blame it on the television age, or de-emphasis of athletics. Whatever the cause, it's apparent a lot of folks, students and adults alike, do their rooting through the newspapers.

Admittedly, Friday evening was not the proverbial "fine night for football." It rained, at times it poured. These, however, were the biggest games to date for the teams involved.

It's hard to imagine the same soggy citizens who splashed out of Chapman Field in Dublin halfway through the homecoming festivities departing, say, an Oakland-Denver contest if hell was freezing over.

And the same Monte Vista rooters who gave up the ghost with Livermore driving toward an abortive third touchdown in the third quarter of their 14-14 tie would not likely dash through a drizzle toward their double-parked Fiats if they were one-up on Joe Doakes with two holes to go, $20 Nassau.

A Danville sports writer, surveying the departing masses, said caustically, "It's a Monte Vista tradition, they usually leave athalftime."

To heck with 'em. They missed the whole show.

In Danville, the tie was nearly as good as a win for the unbeaten Mustangs. They haven't lost yet and control their own destiny, with rival San Ramon yet to be played. The Wolves, at 4-1, are alone in second place.

Derrick Woolridge

It's not easy to sneak such a paragragh past an alert copy editor.

"Hey, wait a second, MV and SR playing for the title, what is this?" he's liable to say. Monte Vista hasn't won an EBAL title. And except for a couple good years while still part of the smaller, AA division, Foothill Athletic League, the Mustangs have been nothing.

Pure-dee simplee, nothing. Nada. They'd throw a scare into some one once in a while, but winning important games was not in the Mustangs repetoire. Obviously, it's different now.

Mike O'Leary, the Mustangs first-year coach, says he was a basket case all week worrying about the game. His team didn't win, but O'Leary need not seek a padded cell again in the near future.

The Mustangs have character, and a myth constantly forced on us says that's the coaches job, to in still character. O'Leary and his staff have succeeded.

They still must play Amador Valley and San Ramon, both winning teams. But, by driving the ball 99 yards against what had been the EBAL's premeire run defense under the unyielding pressure of the clock, Monte Vista has removed all doubts — the Mustangs are for real.

At Dublin, the early-splitters missed Derrick Woolridge and Guy Houston, the best quarterbacks in the EBAL. That's the only link, the only similarity between the pair.

Houston, stocky and freckled, looks like the tight end his father was at Fresno State and bares a striking resemblance to Stanford's Mitch Pleis, an ex-high school quarterback who shifted positions after baseball pitching took a large toll on his arm.

Houston is the unquestioned all-EBAL signal-caller this year and "signal-caller" is no cliche. He has a readily apparent grasp of the game and little fear of being sacked. He calls audibles at the line of scrimage; the SR offense carries his mark as well as that of coach Lyle Setencich.

Woolridge is the heir apparent. Just a long, cool, drink of ice tea at 145 pounds and six-foot plus, Woolridge takes so long getting rid of the ball, you find yourself muttering, "throw it already!"

He's had disastrous games and been benched, but he's already had some spectacular games. Occasionally, an opposing blitzer nips through the line and dogs Woolridge's steps as he drops back.

The lanky junior lopes out of range as though he's moving around in the shower trying to get wet, and launches a high-arching spiral. More often than not, the target is found.

Ask Charlie Yamada, recepient of two touchdown bombs — of 58 and 40 yards — Friday night.

The Gaels lost, 24-12, to showdown bound San Ramon and are, realistically, out of the title chase. Armed with an experienced Woolridge, the Gaels will return to the hunt next season.

And, if the drought returns, some one may stick around to watch.

Give yard, they'll take TD

DANVILLE — In a tie, the only thing equal is the score. Not the ball control, not the satisfaction of the outcome , and certainly not the title-seeking status of the squads.

Monte Vista and Livermore High Schools tied, 14-14, Friday nighton the Danville school's wet field. It could be the most important tie in Monte Vista history and quite possibly the most ill - timed catastrophe yet to happen in Ron Berg's tenure as the Cowboy coach.

The Mustangs now own a 4-0-1 East Bay Athletic League record, a full game ahead of the 'Pokes at 3-1-1, and a half-game in front of sleeper San Ramon, which all but mathematically knocked Dublin from the title picture with a 24-12 win Friday.

Ironically, a good portion of the Mustang faithless left after the homecoming ceremonies at halftime and missed an incredible comeback in the fourth quarter.

Livermore was, in the words of Monte Vista coach Mike O'Leary, "kickin' the hell out of us for awhile." The Cowboys, holding a 14-7 lead, had the ball on the MV eight - yard line with ten minutes to go, and a first down.

A pass from quarterback Naish Piazza to Johnny Farfan moved it to the two, where Piazza ran to the one. Fourthdown.

Evidently discarding the possibility of a field goal the Pokeselected to go to workhorse running back Pete Martinez. Without adequate blocking, he was stopped by tiny Larry Dressler on a near-unassisted tackle.

"That was the game-saving play," said O'Leary.

But it would be stretching a bit to say at that point Dressler's hit was a game-saver. The Mustangs still had 99 yards to go for a touchdown and just eight minutes to do it.

Faced with a third-and-seven from his own four, MV quarterback Bart Adams began what turned out to be a 99-yard drive to tie with a quick pass over the middle to Mike Fiorenza. He caught the ball at the eight, dodged two tacklers and took advantage of a missed clipping violation to run to the 48-yard line, a total pass-run play of 44 yards.

The clip was obvious. O'Leary admitted it and Berg was fuming over it.

"They got a call that pulled them out of the hole down there," said Berg afterwards. "The officiating didn't help us a bit."

O'Leary, likewise, said, "The official missed the clip on that run."

The drive kept alive, Monte Vista continued to peck away at the 'Pokes and the clock. On two consecutive fourth-down situations, Adams hit split ends Jim Kelley and Brad Ingram with screen passes to continue the drive.

"They were going man-to-man on us." explained O'Leary about the calls. "His defender would be ten yards away, and they had lots of room to run.

After the completion to Ingram, the Mustangs had

Bockover's FG holds off Owls

HAYWARD — Chabot College held off a two - point conversion attempt and Charlie Bockover's 22 - yard field goal in the third quarter stood up as the Gladiators upset Foothill 16-14 Friday night.

After the Glads took a 16-8 lead into the final period, the Owls took advantage of bad snap offered Chabot punter John Sevo and took over on the Glad two - yard line with 2:20 to play.

Bob Mills scored the touchdown two playsi later, giving the Owls a chance to tie the game with a two - point conversion.

Quarterback Damian Shine saw the league's top receiver, Mike Coughlin, open in the far corner of the end zone, but the pass bounced off the chest of Coughlin, and the Glads secured the win.

The victory pushed Chabot over the .500 mark in GGC play with a 3-2 mark, while the Owls slipped to 2-3-1.

Jeff Wells forced the first score of the game when he broke through the Chabot line and blocked Sevo's punt from the 12. The ball rolled out of the end zone and the Owls received a safety for a 2-0 lead.

Jeff Evans beat his defender deep and tucked in a 21 - yard pass from Eric Lane to give Chabot a 7-2 lead, Bockover adding the after the halfback option pass.

Later in the period, QB Ron Jones found Dave Fernandez open in the left corner of the end zone for a 13-2 Chabot lead, but Bockover's kick was blocked and the score stood at the half.

Brian MacDougall gorunded out a three - yard run for a Foothill score in the third period as the Owls crept to within 13-8, but the extra point attempt was missed again as the light drizzle affected both teams.

Bockover's field goal was preceded by an interception by Stan Hunt on the 38 - yard line and a 30 - yard return.

'Niners seek status quo

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco 49ers, by beating Detroit last weekend, took a lot of the drama out of their meeting Sunday with the win less Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

If any National Football League team could match the Bucs in futility and frustration, it was this year's 49ers who opened the season with five losses in which they totaled 46 points. Finally, they looked something like last year's winning team and beat the Lions 28 - 7.

"It was a long time coming and it sure feels good," said Delvin Williams, a 1,000 - yard rusher in 1976 who had been pretty much shackled this season until gaining 106 yards against Detroit.

Coach John McKay's Bucs have lost all 20 of their NFL games since joining the league as an expansion team last year. They've scored touchdowns in only two of their six losses this season, and after last week's 13-0 loss to Green Bay, McKay said, "That's about as poor as we can play."

Linebacker Dewey Selmon said, "We dig ourselves into a pit and each game it's tougher to dig back up."

The Bucs' defensive unit which has earned high respect from such opponents as Minnesota and Washington, was penalized three successive times against Green Bay, helping the Packers "drive" 24 yards for their only touchdown after blocking a Tampa punt.

Minnesota nipped the Bucs 9-7 and Washington beat the young team 10-0 in games earlier this season. Tampa's offense, which lost No. 1 quarterback Mike Boryla with a preseason injury and quarterback Gary Huff last week, has sickly offensive statistics including a 41 per cent pass completion average and 12 first downs per game.

Will Stabler be 'right'?

DENVER — Denver cornerback Louis Wright raced toward the sidelines, leaped high into the air, picked off the Ken Stabler pass and dashed 18 yards for a touchdown.

The picture - perfect interception capped Denver's scoring in a shocking 30 - 7 victory over the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders two weeks ago. The Broncos intercepted Stabler seven times and also executed five sacks against Stabler and his replacement, Mike Rae.

But instead of taunting Stabler, Wright holds the All - Pro signalcaller in awe.

"He's the best, no doubt about it," says Wright, a first - round draft choice in 1975 who is rapidly gaining respect of his own.

"The thing about Stabler is he's so unpredictable," says Wright. "He doesn't give himself away. He may look at one receiver all the way and then throw to someone else he hasn't looked at. He's just smart. If you were teaching a quarterback from scratch, you should tell him to do what Stablfd does."

Wright, a 6 - foot - 2, 195 pounder from San Jose State, says Stabler also benefits greatly from the pass protection afforded by his offensive line.

Louis Wright

"On the average, he gets 1 to 1-½ seconds longer than anybody else in the league. We've seen him in films just standing back there, motionless, for a full three seconds, before having to throw. It's incredible."

Wright, and the Denver defense, will be trying to shorten Stabler's relaxation time when the teams meet in an important rematch at Mile High Stadium this afternoon (K60-810, TV - 3, 4, 8). The unbeaten Broncos lead Oakland by one game in the American Conference's West Division.

Denver is suffering physically, with two starters out of the lineup. Wright is hampered somewhat by a dislocated shoulder sustained last "Everybody knows Stabler is a dangerous passer, but we still feel the Raiders base their offense on their running game," says Wright. "They'd rather not pass. In our last meeting, we shut down the run and made them pass more than they wanted to.

"That led to the interceptions. We have to do the same things this week - stop the run and hurry Stabler when he does throw."

Raider Coach John Madden says Denver's quick and active linebackers created problems for the Oakland team in the previous meeting.

"When they got ahead and found they didn't have to worry about the run, they really began to blitz," said Madden. "They mixed things up pretty well on defense."

The Broncos have never been unbeaten this far into the season, and fans who have suffered through 17 seasons without a playoff contender are naturally high. But while the Sunday matchup is being touted as perhaps the biggest game in the Broncos' history, it's being approached more cooly in Oakland.

"This is our seventh game of a 14 - game season," says Madden. "Sure what happens is important, but ultimately we'll be evaluated on how we finish at the end."

EBAL passing leader Guy Houston doesn't have all the time he'd like to get off a pass as Jeff Bynum applies pressure.

Dublin hands its hopes to SR

Thundering across the slippery greens and browns of a rain-splashed autumn eve, the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse rode again at Chapman Field in Dublin Friday night.

Their names weren't Flood, Famine, Disease and Pestilence. They weren't even the ghosts of a legendary Notre Dame backfield. Quite the contrary.

Their names were Fumbles, Interceptions, Frustration and Defeat. AndIrish eyes were as damp as the playing field where the Dublin Gaels left all but a shred of their East Bay Athletic League football championship hopes, losing to San Ramon High School, 24-12.

The Gaels, now 3-2, would require all sorts of aide from the saints to preserve even the slimmest of title pretensions, while the Wolves seem headed toward an inevitable season-closing showdown with rival Monte Vista for the crown.

It was not a good week for the Gaels. Head coach Wayne Re glumly jettisoned quarterback Mike Hardy, the EBAL's passing leader and the current Flecto prep-of-the-week, for a training violation and had to sit halfback Lynn Beamon down for a game, presumably for similar reasons.

The rain that pelted the valley Friday obviously fell on both teams, limiting both of the their vaunted passing attacks — and Dublin's is still vaunted, junior Derrick Woolridge is little drop in quality from the departed Hardy.

But, there was more bad news. Wide receiver Dan Pearson suffered a charlie horse early in the first half and was not a target forWoolridge till late in the game, allowing SR to gang up on flanker Charlie Yamada, after he had stung the Wolves with a pair of lengthy touchdown receptions.

"The damn weather threw us," Re said, shaking his head. "If it hadn't rained, we would have had better footing. Our passing could have been more effective."

With Woolridge passing for 203 yards, the Gaels passing was at least slightly affective. Beamon, a fine rusher, may have been missed more as Dublin amassed just 54 yards on the ground.

But, Re, who did what he had to, refused to seize upon his disciplinary actions as an excuse.

"You could say that it made a difference," he admitted. "But, shoot, the kids we replaced them with did a hell of a job — I'm not going to cry about it."

It was, on paper , the seven Dublin turnovers that hurt most. Two of San Ramon's touchdown possessions began with a turnover, and the first came on the third snap of the game.

Facing a third and three at his own 39, Woolridge threw into the hands of the Wolves' Randy Huddleston, who returned to the Gaels 26.

Four plays later, San Ramon was ahead, 6-0, on the first of four sizable Guy Houston to Mike Campbell passing gains. This one was good for 23 yards and a touchdown, 3:45 into the game.

The extra point, as after each of the game's six touchdowns, failed.

Campbell, a two-way player who finished with four receptions, 119 yards and an interception, came in for praise from his coach, Lyle Setencich, who said, "I don't know any receiver who takes the pounding Mike does over the full 48 minutes and does as well."

The Wolf lead lasted till two minutes were gone in the second period, when Dublin unleashed the first of two Woolridge to Yamada shockers. Two plays after a San Ramon punt, Yamada got between a pair of SR defenders, gathered in Woolridge's spiral and outraced Dan Chevez to the left flag.

A repeat performance, six minutes later, from 40 yards away, tied the game after Houston had capped a 69-yard, eight play drive with a toss to tight end Mike Marlatte.

As proof that San Ramon, which has lost six running backs to injuries and one point or another this season, is not without hardships of its own,Marlatte was a guard until Dave Schmidt broke his ankle in the loss to Livermore three weeks ago.

After the half, San Ramon surprised even itself by establishing a running game. Huddleston, by game's end, piled up 119 yards, most in the latter half when, thanks to an opportune Gael turnover, the Wolves ground out as much time as possible.

On the Wolves take-charge drive, which gave them an 18-12 lead seven minutes into the second half, Huddleston carried six times for 59 yards, including a 29-yard dash for the points. Dublin's Jon Batchelor, who gained 50 yards rushing on offense, had a had a last shot at Huddleston at the ten but went for a shirt tackle and the sopping Wolf slithered away.

The coffin was nailed shut exactly one minute, 42 seconds later. Batchelor pounded for 14 yards on three packs following the SR kick-off, but on the third, the ball was jarred loose and Joey Paparlardo snatched it on one hop and raced 59 yards up the left sideline for the touchdown.

Twice in the fourth quarter, Dublin marched into Wolf territory and twice they yielded the ball via turnovers. Once, Batchelor grabbed a pass from Woolrdige and made his way to the 15 — where he fumbled the ball away.

Dublin got the ball back momentarily, but could get no farther than the 41, from whence Woolridge was intercepted by Campbell.

"You never count yourself out until the last game," said Re after it was over, but it looks as though Dublin's devastating 25-0 upset of Livermore last week will remain the highlight of the Gaels' season.

With league-leading Monte Vista still on the docket, the Wolves, barring a spate of upsets on the final two weekends, rank as thenumber one challengers.

Cinderella's glass slipper has been shattered in Dublin.

Three yards and a cloud of mud

The three-yards and a cloud of dust theory works fine for Amador Valley High School's football team, particularly on a rainy night.

The Dons only passed six times and ran the ball 50 times in taking a 13-7 victory over visiting California High School Friday night to keep their slim East Bay Athletic League title hopes alive.

But it was the winless Grizzlies that struck first in the contest.

After getting the ball on their own seven-yardline after an Amador Valley punt early in the second period California struck like lightning.

Jerry Conrad gained four yards and on the next play quarterback Matt Dulick hit lanky wide receiver Chuck Cary on the sidelines near the Cal bench at the 50 and the 6-2, 180 pound senior sped the rest of the way for the touchdown.

But the Dons came right back on the next series, going 90 yards in 10 plays. Amador only passed once during the drive, that coming on a 19-yard effort from Tim Monday to Paul McCleary.

Monday and running backs Rob Flores, Ernie Zumbach and Mike Hoff shared the running duties the rest of the drive. Hoff went nine yards up the middle for the score. Mark Schoendienst kicked the extra point to tie the score.

The rest of the first half was a combination of turnovers and inconsistent play by both clubs.

However, the Dons came right out in the opening of the third quarter, going 66 yards in six plays, all on the ground.

Monday, who gained 39 yards on the ground for the night, capped the drive with a beautiful 25-yard keeper up the middle for the winning touchdown.

Flores started the drive with an 11-yard run and Hoff followed with runs of 16 and nine yards. Zumbach then set up Monday's touchdown dash with a three-yard plunge.

Amador lost a chance to score first in the ballgame late in the first quarter when Hoff fumbled in the end zone and Tracy Nodlinski pounced on the ball for the Grizzlies.

The Dons had driven 43 yards in 10 plays, mostly on the running of Hoff, ZUmbach and Flores. They reached the Cal one on Hoff's four-yard burst but a five-yard offsides penalty set them back to the six. Hoff then boomed through the Grizzly line before losing the ball.

Don head coach Duffy Defour has mixed emotions about the victory, which gives Amador Valley a 3-2 EBAL record.

"We're still making too many mistakes and giving up the ball," he said. "Our defense played super overall.

"As far as our play selection goes we'll continue to use the same basic ones."

Granada flags down Falcons

Dave Ridgwell ran for 174 yards and both Granada High School touchdowns as the Matadors came from behind to defeat Foothill, 17-13 Friday night.

The Falcons held a surprising 13-10 halftime lead, but Ridgwell scored on a 69-yard burst three minutes into the second half and the Mats defense held Foothill to only 39 yards in total offense the rest of the way.

After the first period it looked as though the game might turn into a Granada rout. The Mats took possession at their own 25 after the opening kickoff and drove 63 yards in 12 plays to set up Scott Riggin's 29-yard field goal.

Ridgwell gave a preview of the fine night he was to have on the Mats' initial drive with a 39-yard tackle-breaking run off a quick-opener to the left side.

Mat quarterback Steve Robison ran 26 yards after a slick fake handoff to his halfback to set up Ridgwell's first touchdown, a 12-yard run up the middle. That made the score Granada 10, Foothill 0, with over three minutes still left to play in the first quarter.

Foothill came right back, though, and drove from its own 29 for a touchdown. Randy Costello keyed the Falcons' drive picking up 36 yards on six carries, most of them right into the middle of Granada's line. Stevenson picked up the touchdown on a one-yard quarterback sneak. Sisneroz kicked the conversion.

Foothill's second touchdown was set up when linebacker Rich Kruppa picked off a Robison pass with only one minute left in the half and returned it 34 yards to six-yard line. Costello took the first-down handoff and bulled up the middle, ending up just inches short of the goal-line. The junior fullback then took the ball over on the next play. Sisneroz' kick was wide to the left, but the Falcons went into the lockeroom with a 13-10 lead.

That lead was erased for good on Ridgwell's 69-yarder. The junior fullback managed to turn the corner and raced down the right sideline for the winning touchdown.

'Stangs rule tourney

Matt Anger did his best to spoil Monte Vista High School's victory celebration but fell a point short as the Mustangs swept all four brackets of the East Bay Athletic League tennis championships Friday at Granada High.

The fourteen-year old freshman took Monte Vista's top seed, Doug Stone, all the way to the final point of a tie-breaker after the third set, but the Mustang junior won it with a perfectly-placed drop shot as darkness settled over the courts.

"Matt played a really good game, especially when he kept coming back," said Stone. "Usually I'm the one coming back. He had great groundstrokes and I wasn't able to come to the net as much as I wanted."

The match started as though it would be over in a hurry. Anger made a number of mistakes and missed several easy shots to quickly found himself on the short end of a 4-1 score.

But Anger began tracking down nearly everything Stone had to offer and tied the set at four whenthe Mustang junior doublefaulted. Anger finished the set by breaking Stone's serve for a 7-5 victory.

Stone jumped out to another quick lead in the second set, breaking Anger twice and holding his own serve for a 3-0 lead. Anger began hitting cross court shots for winners and it looked as though the second set would be a carbon copy of the first when he tied the score at four.

This time Stone was equal to the challenge. He kept Anger off balance with a booming serve and eventually won the set, 6-4.

The final set was close most of the way, although Anger again had to play something of a comeback role. Both players began playing outstanding tennis and ended up in a 6-6 deadlock. The score see-sawed throughout the nine-point tiebreaker, with Stone's drop shot finally clinching the two-and-a-half hour marathon.

"Actually, I didn't feel all that worried when we had to to to the tiebreaker, since I'm 4-0 lifetime on tiebreakers in the third set," explained Stone.

"Matt made a few more errors today than he usually does, but I still think that overall I'm better than him, though he's improving fast," Stone added.

The Mustangs' Tripp Gordon, last year's EBAL champion who had to be content with playing number twos all year after the emergence ofStone, easily won that division, defeating Livermore's Stefan Leupertz, 6-3, 6-3.

Mustang Guy Schalin had a little tougher time of it, but won the number threes' title. Schalin beat Todd Larson of Livermore, 6-3, 6-4.

No matter how the doubles final turned out, Monte Vista was assured of a tournament sweep when both of its doubles teams won their semifinal matches to make itan all-Mustang final. Van Scalin and Jeff Southwick defeated teammates Dave Parker and Rick Overstreet in that one, 7-5, 6-4.

"We've been fortunate to have a tremendous amount of talent this year," said Monte Vista coach Floyd Baker. "My toughest decisions this year have been where to play everybody."

The North Coast Section tournament is played in thespring, but Baker said he isn't too concerned about his players getting out of shape.

"All of these kids play a lot at clubs and all the tournaments around here, that I'm sure they'll stay in form," said Baker.

Dave Parker and Rick Overstreet reached doubles final

Dons eye Dublin

Both the Amador Valley and Dublin junior varsity football teams won convicing victories Friday night as they head toward their showdown.

Amador rallied from a 10-0 first-quarter deficit to roll over California 34-10 and Dublin shutout San Ramon 26-0.

In another EBAL junior varsity contest Troy Thomas scored on a one-yard run in the first quarter to give Foothill a 6-0 win over Granada.

Amador Valley's junior varsity is the defending EBAL champs and has won 15 straight games. Both the Dons and Gaels are 5-0 in EBAL play.

Scott Smith rushed for 102 yards in 14 carries to lead and two touchdowns to lead the Dons over California. He scored the first Amador Valley TD on a four-yard run and came back with a 17-yard scamper to close out the scoring in the final period.

Glenn Gunther completed six of 10 passes for 134 yards and three touchdown passes for the winners. Chuck Thole caught the three touchdown passes on throws of 33, 10 and 68 yards.

Matt Carrere threw two touchdown passes to Mark Kenmille to spark Dublin's victory over the Wolves. Doug Carrere also hurled an eight-yard pass touchdown pass to Doug Anderson. Jerry Fikes scored the other Dublin touchdown on a three-yard run.

the ball on the five - yard line, three minutes to go, and no time outs.

John Pashby took a pitch out to the one - yard line, but the 'Pokes began to jell. They stopped thee Mustangs on a pair of runs up the middle, setting up what could only be termed as a story - book finish withe a fourth-down and less than six inches to go.

Phil Bevis packed the needed yardage behind the blocking of Dave Frohnen, Fiorenza and Ron Piombo.

Score: Livermore 14, Monte Vista 13.

O'Leary immediately discounted the thought of a two - point conversion for the win, saying, "A tie is as good as a win for us. It hurts them much more. Robby (placekicker Craig Robinson) would not have missed."

And he didn't, clearing the uprights by plenty for 14-14.

Livermore's final possession went nowhere, and the 'Pokes conceded the tie by punting the ball away on fourth down instead of risking a possible last-ditch field goal by Robinson thatmight have been made possible if the Mustangs held.

"We're still in it," reminded Berg, who has the toughest part of the season out of the way. "They've got a tough road to hoe."

The Mustangs run up against Amador Valley and San Ramon in their final two contests, both at home, while the 'Pokes face Foothill and Granada, both sub-.500 teams who, still, cannot be takenlightly.

Livermore came out throwing against Monte Vista, and met with partial success. After a fumble on a pitchout by Adams on MV's first play from scrimmage, the 'Pokes ran four plays, went 25 yards, and scored on quarterback Naish Piazza's one-yard run. Jeff Perry kicked the important PAT.

The teams were passive offensively for the remainder of the half, although Monte Vista received a big "A" for assist from an official on a controversial pass completion.

Adams, on a third down from his own 50, fired a balloon downfield which Cowboy safety Johnny Farfan apparently gobbled up at the 12 in front of intended receiver Ingram.

The two bodies plopped to the ground with the ball not clearly visible, but at last indication in Farfan's hands.

Not so when the field judge finished his 20-yard sprint downfield after the play had been blown dead. He awarded the ball to Ingram upon observation. Whatever Farfan received in exchange during the three seconds or so he and Ingram were on the ground, it didn't satisfy a flock of 'Pokes, making like bucking broncos after the call.

.Pashby ran seven yards for a score three plays later, Robinson's kick tying the game at 7-7 .

Livermore squeezed in a score late in the second quarter on a pass from Piazza to Farfan, good for 14 yards, on a crucial third down play. Perry's kick made it 14-7.

The Cowboys did move the ball earlier in the quarter and actually scored an apparent TD, but the run by Martinez from the one-yard linewas nulled on a late holding call.

That left Perry with an attempted 33-yard field gwhich stopped at the Mustang one began in the third period at their own 20. Behind Piazza's leadership, they moved the ball on the ground with alarming consistency. When Martinez was stopped at the one, it was the 16th play in the drive, which featured just a single pass.

"I've been a basket case all week, worrying about this game," said O'Leary, who was very curious to find out the result of Dublin and San Ramon. When told that the Wolves had won, he remarked, "Our place is going to be filled for that game." Hopefully, the fans will hang around next time. This article could be news to them.

"I knew that it was going to be a knock-down, drag out fight," O'Leary continued. Sure enough, the penalties were plentiful. And the pre-game atmosphere was misty. The previous night, some anti - Mustang vandalists visited the field and spray-painted the bleachers with warnings to certain players.

Nothing happened in the game to carry out the threats, although the hitting was hard. No Cowboys were hit with personal fouls, but the Mustangs received four.

Boldrini beats Owls

LOS ALTOS HILLS— Brad Boldrini saved his best act for last.

The former Amador Valley high star footed in a 30-yard shot into the upper - righthand corner of the net to give Chabot College's soccer team a hard - fought 2-1 win over Foothill hereyesterday.

Boldrini's goal, coming in the latter stages of the second half, kept alive Chabot's hope for a shot at the Golden Gate Conference title and almost assured them a spot in the playoffs.

They now own a 8-3 GGC record, while the Owls dropped to 6-5 and saw their hopes of prepeating as GGC and State Champions go into serious jeopardy.

Chabot's remaining three games will tell the tale. They play lower division teams Diablo Valley and San Jose City, while meeting GGC leader DeAnza next Friday at home. Foothill, meanwhile must win all of their games to finish in the top four and make the playoffs.

Pete Howard excelled in goal for the taking his share of physical punishment for the Owls while saving the win with key saves in the second half. He was finally removed late in the game in order to avoid risking injury.

Jeff Mulsow sl-Othmann 31 minutes into the first half on a chip-in shot. Mulsow later twisted his ankle and had to leave the game.

Tim O'Hare pocketed a pass from Garry Hargraves six minutes later as the hosts tied the contest at 1-1. Boldrini's goal was his first as a member of Chabot.

17ers drop Servers

Camille Ghilarducci provided good serving in all three games to lead the 17ers past the Silly Servers 15-3, 15-8, 15-7 in Tri-Valley Receration Volleyball play Wednesday.

Carolyn Richelieu led a good team effort by hitting well. For the losers, Linda Flynn served well and Maureen Notses played well on the front line.

Buranis Construction toppled Dublin Round Table, 15-5, 15-4, 15-7. Consistent serving by Buttons Barry and Sue Shoemaker led the way. Dbfensively, Becky McCann and Mary Ann Paz were outstanding.

The Rotators held off the Tri-Valley okers, 15-6, 15-9, 6-15. Mary Weave came through with some clutch serves, while the whole team played excellent defense. For Tri-Valley, Karea Houston served and Judi Hexter saved well. Sharon Pahl had good set-ups.

The Coyotes won a forfeit over Print-It.

Allied brokers, too, defeated Pizza Arcade by forfeit.

Shirt Shack a forfeit, likewise, over Harris Realty.

American Pools won the first half championship of the league with a decisive 15-11, 15-5, 15-13 win over the Left-Overs. Maque Manchester, Annie Cobal and Jill Suico all came through with some key serves. Linda Midtun saved many shots and set well.

Carl's Drugs took a come-from-behind 14-16, 15-11, 15-13 win over the Volley Jolley Dollies. Outstanding serving by Melody Shepard, who broke out of the third set with eight straight serves, led the win. Linda Finco led the defense with some great saves.

The Jumpers beat Valley Memorial, 15-11, 15-8, 15-4. Peggy Hidalgo and Pat Wilkens were outstanding on offense while Caroline Freeman and Darlene Shiels led the defense.

Hexcel held off the Dandy Dogs, 15-6, 15-11, 6-15. They used an all-around team effort to pull it off. For Dandy Dogs, tough serves by Kris Branum and Nancy Barnwel kept it close, while Lynne Bonham and Kathy Ferguson played good games.

Livermore Round Table won a 9-15, 17-15, 15-11 decision over Montgomery Wards.

Dublin Round Table won by forfeit over Swenson's San Ramon.

Glads upset Bulldogs

HAYWARD — Chabot College's volleyball squad came through with one of the biggest upsets of the season Friday night as they defeated cross-bridge rival College of San Mateo 15-12, 15-10, 17-15 in Golden Gate Conference action here.

San Mateo entered the contest with an 8-1 Golden Gate Conference record, with its only loss coming to powerful De Anza. The Bulldogs had defeated Chabot rather easily in its first meeting of the season.

The Glads were ready this time, though, downing the visitors by scores of 15-12, 15-10, and 17-15.

The hitting of Amador Valley High graduates Carmen Macon and Debbie Oxsen gave Chabot its first game victory. The defense did its part, too, according to Chabot coach Lois Machado.

"It seemed like our defense hardly ever allowed the ball to hit the floor, and we really had some spectacular saves," she said.

Chabot was down 8-3 in the second game, but a long serving string by Sun Chang brought the Glads even and some service "bullets," as Machado aptly described them, wrapped up the game.

The third game was tight all the way, although Chabot had several chances to wrap it up after assuming a 14-11 lead. San Mateo came back to tie it at 14 though, leaving it to Cindy Aafedt's spikes and Chang's serves to wrap up the match for the Glads.

Chabot's blocking continued its season-long improvement, led by Macon, Kim Liebert, and Oxsen.

The win raised the Glads record to 4-5 in GGC play. Chabot will host West Valley this Wednesday night in a 7:30 p.m. contest.

North jailed for cocaine

OAKLAND — Bill North, 29-year-old outfielder with the Oakland Athletics, spent several hours in jail Saturday after a narcotics task force raided his home, police announced.

Police said North, another man and a woman were taken into custody around 11:30 p.m. Friday after a "narcotics task force" with a search warrant raided his home at 7875 Skyline Drive.

Police said they took into custody with North Joe Carter, 29, whom police said gave the same address, Demerier Lee, 24, 937 Shore Point, Alameda, and Jennifer Colisomo, 28, 270 Wayne Street, Oakland.

On Saturday morning, Minicipal Court Judge Jacqueline Tabor reveiwed the cases and released North, Miss Lee and Miss Colosimo on their recognizance, and set bail for Carter at $7,500. North and Miss Lee left the jail about 10:30 a.m.

The report said the task force was used of officers including Alameda and Oakland police. They said the arrests resulted from a six - week probe of cocaine traffic coming in from Florida into California.

Police siad a decision would be made Monday on any charges which may be placed against the arrested persons.

Glads dunked

HAYWARD — Amador Valley High graduate Bruce Yparraguirre scored a pair of goals and Dublin's Mark Steinhauff and Jerry Fenstermacher added one apiece, but nothing else happened for Chabot College's water polo team here yesterday in dropping an 11-4 decision to Diablo Valley.

DVC had a brief 3-2 lead at halftime, but romped away in the second half by scoring five goals in the third period. Eric Steinhauff had two assists for Chabot, while Kirk Scanlon added one. Goalie Mark Saracco saved a season - high 21 shots for the Glads.

A pair of aces

Two Pleasanton residents are eligible to win $1,000 and a free trip to Scotland as a result of scoring two holes-in-one recently at the Castlewood Country Club.

They are Mr. Mort Magofin of 621 St. Mary Street, and Mr. Dale Pinkerton of 7441 Maywood Drive.

Their aces qualified them for the Rusty Nail Hole-In-One Sweepstake sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland. The winner of the 17th annual competition will be announced early next year.

Tamara Homes start at under $80,000 in Union City and Newark

Commuter haven homes

The Bren Company's Tamara homes at Union City and Newark's Bridgepointe have become known as stylish commuter havens because of the accessibility of a complete transportation network to homeowners at the popular sites. The proximity of the Dumbarton and San Mateo bridges brings San Francisco and peninsula employment centers close to home. Highway 17 and BART connect the two communities with the rest of the East BaY.

Steady sales at the two projects indicate that a large number of commuters have taken advantage of the convenient location, luxury features and moderate prices that Tamara homes offer. At Bridgepointe, three and four bedroom homes are built on large lots along a series of curving streets. Seeded front lawns and complete rear yard fencing add to the fresh, park-like mood of the community. Inside, the homes are well-planned for contemporary lifestyles, with large and bright family rooms, garden view kitchens, living rooms with fireplaces, dining rooms and master bedroom suites with private baths.

Like the Bridgepointe Tamaras, the Union City homes are further enhanced by balconies, lofty ceilings, enormous windows and quality wall-to-wall carpeting.

A full range of one and two story Tamaras are available at Bridgepointe and Union City, which are now in their final phases. A collection of one and two story homes are available for immediate occupancy at Bridgepointe.

To visit Bridgepointe, take Hwy 17 to the Jarvis Avenue exit in Newark, then west to the models.

The Union City models are located on Regents Drive. Take Hwy 17 to the Dyer Road exit, then west on Dyer to Regents.

The Bridgepointe Tamaras range in price from $75,990. The Union City plans start at $76,990.

Real estate sales in English

San Diego — California may soon become the first state in the nation to design and use simplified real estate documents written in easy to understand language to aid both buyers and sellers in the more than 1.5 million real estate transactions which take place annually.

Speaking before the 73rd annual convention of the California Association of Realtors, real estate commissioner David H. Fox, whose department is responsible for protecting the oublic and regulating the more than 312,000 licensees, singled out "document pollution" as a key area of needed reform.

"Consumers are needlessly flooded with lengthy, convoluted, vague and archaic real estate forms loaded with legalese," the commissioner charged.

He cited a department-sponsored survy which concl4ded that from 48-to-90 percent of all real estate buyers and sellers don't really understand the meaning of such frequently used terms as: escrow, trust deed, mortgage, acceleration clause and personal property.

Fox also pointed to another recent department study to determine the need for simplified documents in which all real estate brokers, escrow and savings and loan officers interviewed responded that their clients do not understand the documents routinely used. The study also concluded that the readability of the most common real estate forms ranged from "difficult to extremely difficult" when tested by the widely used Flesch Reading Ease Formula.

Fox, also an attorney, pledged that within the next 12 months, his department will produce concise, simplified, and easy to understand basic real estate documents retaining complete legal integrity. He urged all licensees to support this program and make full use of the forms as they become available.

He used the occasion to stress that intensified consumer protection would be high on the department's list of priorities in the year ahead. He also sought the support of organized real estate in sponsoring home buyer seminars and in the weeding out of unprincipled licensees whose quistionable acts tend to give the entire industry a negative image.

Noting that the department revoked, restricted suspended or denied more than 500 real estate licenses during the last year, Fox observed that all too often the public only hears the "bad news," while the good work of the vast majority of the real estate profession goes unnoticed.

To correct this imbalance, he explained that the department, for the first time, will be giving "Extraordinary Public Service Awards to a limited number of deserving salespersons, brokers and companies performing outstanding public services. The awards will be based upon such factors as the extent of community service rendered, use of simplified documents, distribution of consumer-oriented brochures and the absence of license disciplinary actions.

The commissioner moved on to stress that one of the most important public services the industry can perform is to increase consumer awareness of the basic factors to be considered before entering into any real estate transaction. Toward this end, the department will be presenting more than 80 one-day home buyer seminars throughout the state where interested consumers will receive instruction in the basics of home buying and selling.

Topics to be covered include home selection guidelines, choosing a real estate agent, basic budgeting, home inspection checklists, considerations comparing new and existing home purchases, financing and insurance, buyer and seller obligations and analysis of basic real estate forms.

Fox, who was appointed to his current position by the governor in 1976, re-affirmed his initial impression of the 110,000-member California Association of Realtors saying the organization is doing "an outstanding job for the public and for the real estate professions."

"We have and will continue to make every effort to include your members on our planning committees on every significant issue," the commissioner said.

How to make your house 'rentable'

House rentals have reached the saturation point in some communities, and some people are concerned that their plans to retire to a house they enjoyed before a job transfer may need to be modified. One benefit of renting a house instead of selling it has been the ease of paying off a mortgage as one lives and conducts one's business in another community.

When many houses are available, competition is keen, and it is important to keep a house in marketable condition. To attract a tenant, it should look homelike and easily maintained — economy is a big factor — and the first impression is important. It should give an easy-care impression before the would-be tenant enters the building. In talking with some prospective tenants and a real estate broker about first impressions, certain factors perissted in their criticism of some homes.

— The color of the house can be a big drawback, two house seekers said. Their views indicate it is difficult to rent a house painted in a far-out color. One family refused even to enter a house that was painted a deep yellow. Primary colors should be carefully chosen so they are not overwhelming, one real estate person commented. Pastel and pale colors arc safe, and time-tested, early American deep colacceptable in some communities. White and pale,gray may be the safest colors, if one is in doubt. It is a good idea not to try to mix an unusual color paint or to let a painter interpet the color for you.

— Attention-getters on lawns such as fake wishing wells or little plastic animals and unusual name signs that might have been left by previous tenants may put off a potential tenant even though such eye-sores can be removed. These things may be seen as representative of an owner's poor taste that might not be obvious at first glance.

— The grounds about the house should be neat. One family visited their empty house to see why it had not been rented and they were astonished to find a mass of junk in their backyard. An old cabinet and stove that had been replaced for a previous tenant was still cluttering the yard, and it had been the former tenant's responsibility for removal, something the management firm should have insisted upon.

— A neat driveway and the house path are essential to the trim look. Little things turn people off: Paint peeling on shutters; cracked glass in a door to the house; a patio in disrepair. House hunters see all disrepair as a burden, even though the real estate people might promise that everything would be in top condition by the time the family moves in.

— Outdoors shouldn't be a jungle nor should garden and lawns look as if they will need professional care. Long driveways that need snow plowing often foil rentals, but this problem is usually resolved by the person who wants a long driveway.

It's a good idea for an owner to visit a house after a tenant moves out if it is possible. Real estate persons may be too busy to notice that the garage looks messy, or that certain bushes or whatever should be pruned to make the house look prettier outside and brighter inside.

How to keep the cost of running a home down to a walk.

With energy prices continuing to rise, the best way to keep costs down is to buy a home that uses less energy. Like one that displays the Energy Conservation Home sign, which tells you that a lot of energy-saving features are built into the house, whether it's new or remodeled.

These days, new homes have to meet local, State and Federal (FHA) insulation and weatherstripping requirements. But Energy Conservation Homes go a lot further. Each has a combination of special, built-in energy-saving features, such as dishwashers with "off" switches for the drying cycle; water-saving faucets, toilets and showerheads; pilotless ignition gas ranges; energy-efficient water heaters; fluorescent lighting; insulated hot water piping; set-back furnace thermostats; or clogged-filter indicators on heating or cooling systems.

The features included in each home will vary, but here's how the program works. PG&E awards points for each installed conservation feature. And builders must achieve a minimum of 50 points to qualify a dwelling as a PG&E Energy Conservation Home, and to display the sign.

Because so many people are demanding energy conservation, builders are beginning to get the message.

The time for careless consumption of energy is over. It's too expensive, and we can't risk running out of it. And a good time to make sure energy costs don't eat you out of house and home, is when you buy.

PG and E
No one can afford to waste energy.

Application of LAVWMA for a conditional use permit to allow the construction and use of (1) a junction structure to be located just north of the future Stoneridge Drive approximately 750 feet east of the Alamo Canal and (2) a pumping facility to be located on the site of the VCSD Sewage Treatment Plant. The junction structure would consist of a block building about 190 sq. ft. in size, nine feet in height, and would contain metering, sampling and automatic chemical treatment facilities. The pumping facility would consist of the pumps designed to transfer VSD's effluent to the export pump facility. Both of these facilities are parts of the LAVWMA export pipeline facility for which an environmental impact statement was prepared. Additional, specific information on these facilities is available in an additional environmental assessment. This additional information is available for review at the Planning Department, 200 Bernal Avenue, Pleasanton, California.

the new 510 is back

The 1978 510 is not simply a return engagement of an old favorite. It's an all-new generation of Datsun's practical family car series — a step up from the B-210, more luxurious than the old 710.

It shares the same fiesty proven, dependable 2000cc O.H.C. engine as the 200-SX, and its trim weight-to-horsepower ratio promises typical Datsun gas savings.

The new rear suspension improves the ride, the longer seat track and efficient use of interior space add comfort, and there are half-a-dozen improvements in insulation and noise isolation to give quiet on-the-road performance.

New light-touch steering and a 20% increase in glass area provide easy handling and great visibility. There's great versatility, too, in the choice of a 2-door Sedan, 3-door Hatchback, 4-door Sedan, or 5-door Wagon.
